Lancaster Farming

VOL. 34 No. 51 | Four Sections | Lancaster Farming, Saturday, October 28, 1989 | 50¢ Per Copy | $12.50 Per Year

Two worlds met at the Lowell Brubaker family farm Monday morning when the Jackson family singers stopped in for a few relaxing moments before getting on the road again. The Jacksons are the featured guests at the Lancaster County Holstein Association Banquet in November so Brubaker, association president, wanted the world-famous singers to know where milk comes from before they met all the Holstein breeders. In the photo (l to r): Hilltop-Heritage Tempo Manda, first place show cow with over 20,000m and 700f at 3y; Brubaker; Bruce and Brenda Jackson; Crystal and Blake Brubaker, age 5 and 3; Brittany and Brent Jackson, age 5 and 4; and Deb Brubaker. Heather Brubaker, age 8, was in school.

Integrated Pest Management Enhances Farm Profitability

BY PAT PURCELL

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Integrated Pest Management (IPM) is not a new idea for pest control to many farmers, but IPM has experienced a resurgence of interest recently due mostly to the public's continuing concern about agricultural pesticide use.

But farmers and many other members of the agribusiness community are part of this renewed interest. This interest was evident on Thursday at a seminar sponsored by the PennAg Industries Association entitled "Integrated Pest Management, All For One Goal With Room For All". The seminar was held at the Eden Resort Inn and co-sponsored by the Alliance For The Chesapeake Bay, Soil and Water Conservation Society, PA Dept. of Agriculture, Penn State University's College of Agriculture and the Pennsylvania Association of COnservation Districts.

Pennsylvania Receives 1989 Farmland Trust Award

WASHINGTON, DC — Pennsylvania Governor Robert Casey recently accepted a 1989 American Farmland Trust Agricultural Conservation Award on behalf of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, which was honored in the category of "Public Policy and Program Development" for its new $100 million farmland preservation program.

The American Farmland Trust (AFT), the only national, nonprofit organization dedicated solely to protecting farmland, cited Penn-

Chester Co. SOS Campaign Under Way

WEST CHESTER (Chester Co.) — Open space preservation in Chester County is "a NOW or NEVER issue," Save Open Space Chairman Peter Hausmann told a crowd of supporters as he officially kicked off his committee's Fall campaign. Officially known as Chester County Citizens To Save Open Space, the organization is mounting a county-wide campaign to encourage voters to vote YES in the November 7 referendum on a $50 million bond issue to preserve farmland, historically

Oh, To Know Where Milk Comes From

BY EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Managing Editor

MT. JOY (Lancaster Co.)—On the road to Nashville, TN, with a short stop at home in Englewood, OH, the Jackson Family concert group paid an advance visit Monday morning to the Lancaster County family farm of Holstein Association President Lowell Brubaker. Because the Jackson family, Bruce and Brenda with children Brittany, age five, and Brent, age four are the featured guests at the Lancaster County Holstein Banquet next month, Brubaker thought it would be a nice idea to introduce the world-famous music group to a little "real" farm life. This idea came to life when the Jacksons finished five concerts within 24 hours over last weekend and were ready

Lancaster County Poultry Group Elects Directors

BY LISA RISSER

WILLOW VALLEY (Lancaster Co.) — Four men were elected to the Lancaster County Poultry Association Board of Directors during the annual dinner meeting on Tuesday.

Mike Harrold of Lititz, Guy Martin of Lancaster, and Clyde Slaymaker of Strasburg are new to the 12-member board while Milton Landis of Parkesburg retained his seat.

Other board members are Richard E. Landis, Kenneth Martin, Barry Renno, Thomas Pantano, Paul Wolgemuth, Roger Garber, and Thomas Beachler.

The nearly 300 people present at the banquet, held at the Willow Valley Convention Center, honored Robert Zimmerman, past board vice president, and Steve Combs, past board secretary, for their service. Both men received plaques in recognition of their work.

Anita Meck of Willow Street, Lancaster County and Pennsylvania Poultry Queen, received a $500 scholarship, which will help her in

A top choice for shelled grain or ear corn in 110 to 120-day maturity areas, G-4543 produces maximum yields even at lower populations. In Delaware hybrid field corn trials, it topped the field with 148.4 bu./A.

G-4626 has it all in a 115 to 120-day maturity hybrid—fast dry-down, outstanding stay-green, superior standability, excellent plant health and exceptional yields. In Delaware trials, G-4626 produced yields up to 200.9 bu./A.

G-4446 delivers superior late season standability, excellent grain quality and high test weights. A multi-purpose, widely adapted hybrid, G-4446 produced a state record 252.4 bu./A. in the 1986 Pa. Five-Acre Corn Club competition.

PARADISE TOBACCO AUCTION IS BACK!

It is a year that we expect an intense demand for all your tobaccos. You farmers are in the drivers seat this year. If you sell on the farm before auction opens, market price may be determined too quickly and too cheaply. Paradise will keep you informed of market info each week in this Lancaster Farming space.

People from all parts of the country have been here to inquire about how much tobacco we will have in the market place. We have already sent out a lot of good samples representing a quality crop. We finally have gotten a sound committment from a large tobacco company to follow your auction. Your dream has come true and you will be rewarded for your support of the tobacco auction system. Paradise continues to work to put PA grown tobacco on the map. Remember, Maryland tobacco auction went 5 years before attracting tobacco companies to their market. We have gone through 4 years now, and see light at the end of the tunnel.

The tobacco auction system stands stronger among farmers and buyers than it ever has - NO MATTER WHATEVER ANYBODY TELLS YOU!!

After last year you should respect the auction system and its IMPACT!! You need to have enough confidence in the tobacco auction system to wait until it opens before you sell either type of tobacco!! This could be a year of the greatest demand you have seen for both type 41 and 609 tobacco - and Paradise expects to make a market in both types. Brace yourself hard for buyers coming out early to the farm to buy this crop before auction opens and the big new tobacco company arrives - YOU MAY BE TEMPTED BY BIG PRICES!! Don't forget the auction in a good year - remember when you wanted us in the tough years?

FOCUS ON PARADISE - We have become PA's tobacco marketing center. The auction system can survive - but it soley depends on you, "The Tobacco Farmer" - to support it and make it work!!!

AGAIN - YOU WILL BE TEMPTED BY BIG PRICES BEFORE AUCTION OPENS BUT BE STRONG - AUCTION WILL WORK TO MAKE THEM BIGGER! Remember, we will sell both types of tobacco.

For Sale: 3 Compartment bale boxes with either hydraulic or hand jacks; Cotton baling twine, we can ship UPS.

OPINION

SOS In Chester County

After months of research and investigation, The Open Space and Environmental Task Force in Chester County assembled its recommendations on current and anticipated development in Chester County. In their report to the Chester County Commissioners, they called for a $50 million bond issue to acquire land for county parks, to help preserve farmland, open space, environmentally and historically sensitive areas, and to provide matching grants and loans to local municipalities and conservancies to help accomplish the same goals.

Because of the magnitude of the project, the Chester County Commissioners requested a referendum question for the November 7 ballot in order to measure public support for open space preservation.

Following the Commissioners' decision to hold the referendum, several members from the Open Space Task Force, recognizing the importance of the issue, decided to form a temporary, non-profit committee to educate voters about the importance of the issue of preserving open space and to encourage voters to vote YES on the referendum.

This new committee is called Chester County Citizens To Save Open Space. Headquarters have been established at 152 West Gay Street in West Chester. The organization is chaired by Peter O. Hausmann, a member of the Open Space Task Force. Linda L. Peterson was named Executive Director in August. Former Judge Theodore Rogers was named Treasurer.

The organization has won endorsements for the passage of the referendum from leading environmental, business, political, civic, and municipal organizations, as well as numerous corporations and political officials in Chester County. Field coordinators throughout the county are being appointed, phone banks are being created, and a broad based promotional effort is being mounted.

Here are a few of the facts the Task Force has assembled for voter consideration:

— 90 acres of open space are being lost every day to development (average over last three years). In 1988 alone, approximately 32,812 Chester County acres were proposed for development.

— Over 12,000 new housing units were proposed for development in 1988. This is the equivalent of two new "West Chester Boroughs" being created. In the past three years, 34,781 new housing units have been proposed in the county.

— The county is becoming increasingly urban and suburban, rather than rural. In 1985, it was estimated that 22 percent of the County was developed, double the amount developed between 1970 and 1985. Today, 44 percent of the county is now classified as urban or suburban, double the amount of just four years ago.

— Farmland is being lost at the rate of 6,000 acres per year, or about 16 acres per day. This rate continued steady from 1982 to 1987. We have lost 30,037 acres of farmland since 1982. At the current rate of loss, there will be no farmland left in Chester County at the end of this generation (specifically, 32 years).

The SOS (Save Open Space) call has gone out in Chester County. Let's have the voters give a positive response to this call.

NOW IS THE TIME

To Observe Weed Populations

Now that most of our corn is harvested, we can plainly see what weeds failed to be controlled in those fields. We are seeing more of the persistent, hard-to-control weeds appearing in our crop fields during the past eight-10 years. In part, this is because we have changed our farming methods, particularly tillage techniques and we're not using crop rotations in the case of continuous corn.

Bindweeds, horsenettle, hemp dogbane, curly dock, Canada thistle, Johnsongrass, and yes, even woody plants such as brambles and small volunteer trees have appeared in increasing numbers. We need to note the presence of these weeds now and then prepare to deal with them.

When you notice a new weed, have it identified and take appropriate control measures before that weed becomes a menacing problem. If weeds are presently escaping from your control efforts, find out how to change your weed management program.

To Prevent Pneumonia

As temperature and weather conditions vary considerably from day to day and from hour to hour, precautions need to be taken to prevent pneumonia. Pneumonia causing organisms are normally present in the respiratory tract, but under periods of stress an animal's resistance can be lowered to the point where it can no longer fight off the infection. So, it's important to minimize stress on animals. Keep barns well ventilated, but avoid cold drafts. This may require frequent adjustments of doors and windows, or the proper installation and use of fans. Good ventilation prevents the buildup of stagnant, moist germ-laden air. That's important! Also avoid overcrowding. During inclement and rapidly changing weather conditions, one should also minimize stresses associated with transporting animals, weaning, changing feeds, deworming, vaccinating, etc. When necessary, consult your veterinarian for advice on immunization and treatment.

To Winterize Small Engines

Many small engines on farms and around houses will be hard to start next spring. But you can change that by properly winterizing your small engines. Here are some suggestions:

• After running the engine to reach operating temperature, drain the crankcase and refill with new oil of proper weight, as specified in the operator's manual.

• Add a few teaspoons of gasoline stablizer into the gas tank and run the engine for several minutes to make sure additive flows throughout the fuel system.

• If the engine is water cooled, be sure the anti-freeze in the cooling system is sufficient for the lowest temperature.

• Remove the spark plug and pour a tablespoon of clean oil into the cylinder. Also clean and regap the spark plug or replace with a new one.

• Use an air gun to blow loose dirt and chaff from the engine. Remove and service the air cleaner.

• Finally, cover the engine with a piece of canvas and store in a dry place under cover.

To Check Stand-By Generators

The winter season brings with it snow and ice storms that can damage and knock out our supply of electricity. Most farmers are badly crippled without electricity so the need for a stand-by generator is recognized. I know that many poultry farms already have this equipment. However, if the generator is not in good working condition, it may not do the job in case of emergency. These generators should be run once a week to reassure yourself that it's in good running condition. If it is a tractor hookup type, then take the time to make that connection each week. When the power goes off, you don't have time to run tests of the equipment to make sure it's in proper working order.

Editor:

About your editorial October 7, 1989, you mention a "World Resources Institute." Who & where are they? How do they make money to keep going? Did you ever look at their income reports?

Another thing about your comments relative to 1½ billion metric tons. Who weighed all of this stuff? And if it's hanging up in the atmosphere, what holds it up?

Please answer these simple questions in your next editorial.

I'm in favor of using farm grown materials for fuel, but I believe you're out on a limb by your comments.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS
BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

SPIRITUAL FREELOADERS

October 29, 1989

Background Scripture:
2 Thessalonians 2 through 3.
Devotional Reading:
Matthew 24: 15-28.

I've known a fair number of people in the churches I've served who always could be counted upon to do much more than their share. As a pastor I was always glad to have these people. But I would have been just as satisfied to have everyone do just his own share. The fact is, in the church, like just about everywhere else, there are lots of freeloaders, people who don't pull their own weight.

I'm reminded of the young man who was inducted into the U.S. Navy. In his first letter home he wrote, "Dear Mom, I joined the Navy because I noticed that they always kept their ships so nice and clean. Now I know who it is that keeps them nice and clean!" Lots of people take for granted the tremendous amount of effort that goes into sustaining congregational life. When they arrive at church there's never any question but that it will be open, lighted, heated or cooled, cleaned and ready for worship or Sunday school. There will be worship bulletins handed out at the door, fresh flowers on the altar, an anthem for the choir and a sermon from the minister. It would never occur to anyone that any of these elements might not be ready on any particular Sunday morning.

DOING YOUR SHARE

I now am on the staff of a very large United Methodist Church with a considerable staff of paid employees. But even with all our paid employees, the church still couldn't begin to fulfill its basic functions without the efforts of lots and lots of volunteers. ("Volunteers" includes people who didn't actually volunteer, but didn't say "no" when you asked them.) No church can be very effective in serving either its members or the community unless it can find enough people who are willing to do their share and perhaps more.

I have found over the years that most of the freeloading in the church is unintentional and unconscious. These people don't go out of their way to shirk their share of the work; for the most part they are simply oblivious. They never stop to think how all these necessary tasks are accomplished in the church. And the reason they are usually unaware is that someone else has picked up their share of the load.

GOOD EXAMPLES

Paul's concern for the people of the church at Thessalonica was along these same lines, although the cause was somewhat different. Lots of these people were so certain that Christ's return was just around the corner that they just sat and waited. Paul pointedly reminds the Thessalonians of the people he and his associates set when they were with them: "We were not idle when we were with you, we did not eat anyone's bread without paying, but with toil and labor we worked night and day, that we might not burden any of you" (3:8). It was because of this example that they set before the church at Thessalonica that Paul and his associates felt confident in commanding them: "If anyone will not work, let him not eat" (3:10).

The results are excellent. We already hold the weight and feed conversion records for three major broiler companies. From start to finish, the New Orange One is re-writing the book on feed conversion.

The New Orange One is fully adjustable from "full flow" for starting baby chicks, to a "limited flow" as you finish your birds. It is unique in doing both well. At the same time we made it stronger, from top to bottom, so you can have the extra benefit of more rugged and reliable equipment.

Ask your Big Dutchman poultry equipment distributor about the New Orange One and how it can help you do your best.

HOW TO HANDLE SUCCESS.

Just climb onto a Kubota and enjoy your view from the top-of-the-line compact tractor.

With the new B-series, we've reached what we think of as a turning point in tractor design. It's called the Bi-Speed Turn.

Most simply, the front wheels take corners sixty percent faster than the rear wheels. Sharp turns are not only tighter than those of ordinary 4-wheel drive, they're smoother, less damaging to turf, far less unsettling to the driver.

But then, Kubota has been the innovation leader since we introduced the first compact tractors to feature liquid-cooled diesel engines, 4-wheel drive and hydrostatic transmissions.

Service and support are ever present because, unlike many other tractors, every Kubota is still made by Kubota. And you wouldn't want your success handled by just anyone.

Sanitation On Dairy Farms

TOWANDA (Bradford Co.) — I think that we all need to do a better job on dairy sanitation in the county. I include myself, because although I have good intentions of always scrubbing my boots or putting on plastic ones on a farm visit, I occasionally will visit a neighboring farm without scrubbing or forget to put disinfectant in my car once in a while and enter the barn anyway. I think that we are all guilty of not being as strict as we need to be about people not wearing boots when they enter barns.

Without good traffic control on your farm the health of your animals may be compromised and diseases may be spread by everything from infected garments to large and small equipment. People spread diseases directly by means of their boots, shoes, hands and clothing. Shared hoof trimmers, truck tires, farm machinery and equipment which passes between farms can also spread diseases.

When you use tools on healthy animals on your farm after you used them on sick or infected animals diseases can be spread. Don't use common syringes and needles between cows to vaccinate, blood test or administer drugs. This practice can spread diseases such as bovine leukosis from infected animals or carriers to noninfected animals.

Every farmer should set strict sanitation rules for all visitors. Visitors need to wear clean overalls and disinfected rubber boots or plastic disposable boots. Keep a supply of disposable boots and extra pairs of overalls to make it easier to enforce your rules. Plastic disposable boots are available from any local farm supply store or from farm supply catalogs. Boots need to be disinfected between farms or on the same farm after contact with unhealthy animals.

Besides setting stricter rules, there are additional steps to help control traffic. Discourage visitors from entering animal housing or feeding areas. Designate specific visitor areas to cut down on the contact with human carriers of disease.

DHIA supervisors are now required to disinfect their boots or wear disposable plastic on all farms. Require the same from all salesmen and other visitors to the farm. And remind people who wear the disposable boots to make sure that they pick their feet up so that they don't scuff their feet and scare the cattle. We need to begin to work to cut down on the chances of spreading disease by visitor traffic.

Average Farm Feed Costs For Handy Reference

To help farmers across the state to have handy reference of commodity input costs in their feeding operations for DHIA record sheets or to develop livestock feed cost data, here's this week's average costs of various ingredients as compiled from regional reports across the state of Pennsylvania. Remember these are averages so you will need to adjust your figures up or down according to your location and the quality of your crop.

Sec. Wolff Wants Production Ag In Farm Bill

WASHINGTON, DC — Secretary of Agriculture Boyd E. Wolff told members of the Pennsylvania Congressional delegation and key agricultural leaders that the 1990 Farm Bill should focus on production agriculture.

"Environmental goals can be met while maintaining our focus on production," said Wolff. "We can integrate conservation and environmental initiatives through the Reserve Program. We can encourage farmers to idle environmentally beneficial land, but it's unfair to restrict land use without compensation."

Wolff also recommended more planting flexibility so farmers could plant high demand crops and still receive federal payments for idled acreage.

Wolff met with members of Congress in Washington on Oct. 11 and 12 to discuss national issues that affect farmers and consumers in Pennsylvania.

He also urged formation of a national Food Safety Council to educate consumers on food safety issues.

"Public anxiety and alarmist discussion of food safety has been far greater than the risks. Our consumers need to know how much is being done to protect them, and that their food supply is the safest in the world," said Wolff.

In meetings with congressmen, Wolff also called for increased funding for research and extension and for passage of HR-2336 to lower the estate tax burden that has forced new generations of farmers off the farm when they were unable to pay inheritance taxes.

Federal Crop Insurance Requirements

EPHRATA (Lancaster Co.)— Due to the 1989 Disaster Assistance Act, Federal Crop Insurance Corporation has announced an extension of the sales closing date for fall-seeded wheat, barley, oats, and rye. This extension applies only to producers who have filed for 1989 disaster assistance for the above listed crops and crop insurance is a requirement. Application for crop insurance must be filed within 15 days of ASCS notification that crop insurance is required or November 30. A waiver of this requirement will not be granted. If you have any questions regarding this provision, contact your county ASCS office.

PSU Dairy Club Prepares For Lion Classic

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — The Penn State Dairy Science Club is looking forward to a high-quality, high-profit harvest in early November, as they prepare for their Sixth Annual Nittany Lion Fall Classic. This year's Classic, to be held Friday, November 10 at Penn State's Ag Arena, is shaping-up as the best ever with nearly 60 top consignments already selected.

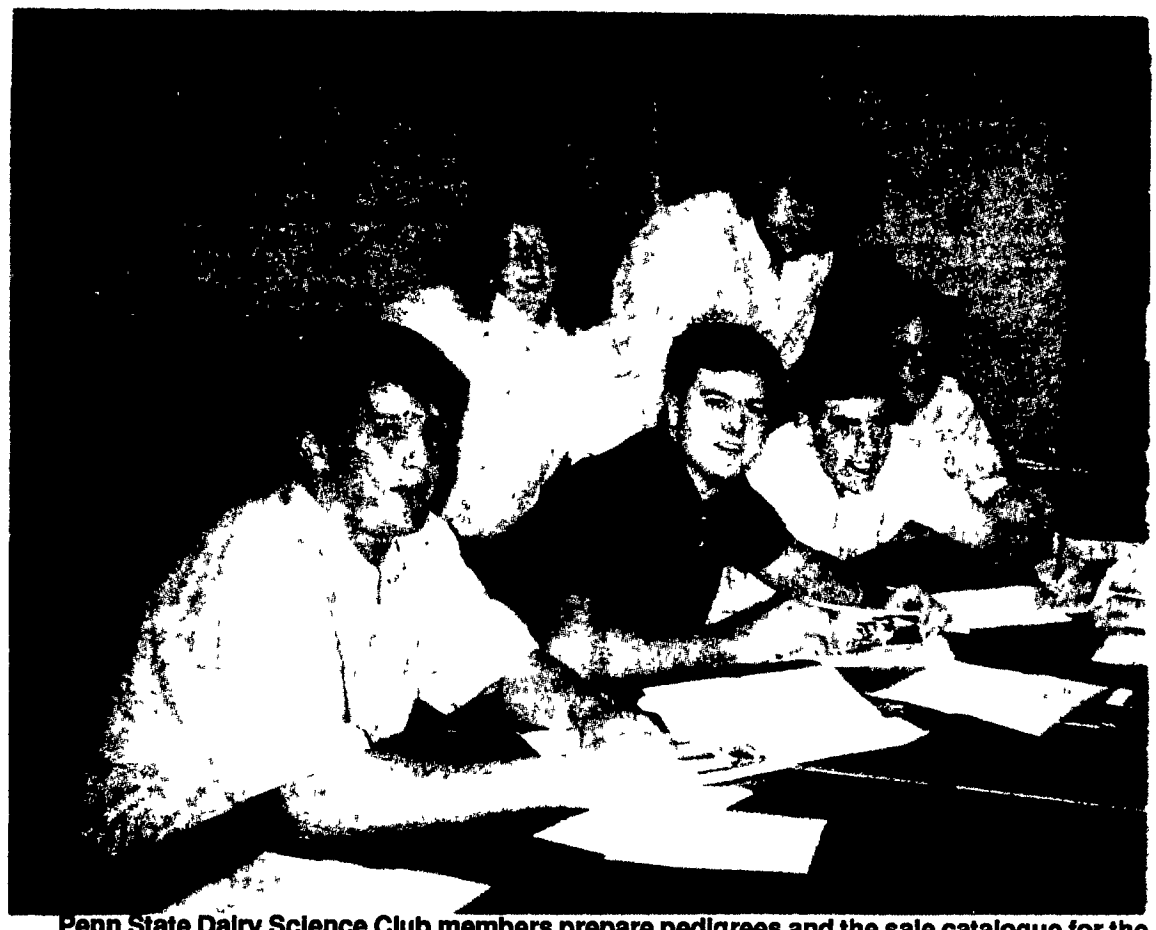
Beginning as a dream in 1983, the Nittany Lion Fall Classic has become a showcase for an efficiently managed consignment sale and some of Pennsylvania's highest quality dairy animals. A cooperative effort between the Dairy Science Club and PHA, the Fall Classic provides a "hands-on" learning experience in cattle merchandising, selection, advertising, animal preparation and business management.

This year, this highly successful consignment sale will provide an opportunity for the Club to contribute their time and energy to the development of the third phase of the award-winning Ag Arena Complex. This pending addition will be a new Exhibition Building, measuring 220 feet long and 154 feet wide.

The Center's convenient mid-Pennsylvania location would make it an ideal site for agricultural trade shows and other educational events for adults and juniors that are not now feasible because of the limited space. The State Junior Dairy Show, for example, could be held at the Center.

Fund raising is already underway, with over $100,000 committed to date. Says Dave Mattocks, Sale Chairman, "The Club sees this as a terrific opportunity to raise funds for a complex that is used by the entire Collge of Agriuclture, as well as Pennsylvania Ag Industries; it is our way of instilling a lasting contribution". Club members will be donating their efforts in organizing the sale, while dairy producers throughout the Commonwealth will be making a tax deductible contribution through their standard 15% consignment to the 1989 Nittany Lion Fall Classic. Consigners also have the option of donating beyond the standard commission.

Mattocks encourages all breeders to mark their calendars for this important event, and to become involved as a consignor and buyer. For further information, Mattocks can be reached at (717) 836-3310 or call the Pennsylvania Holstein Association at (814) 234-0364.



Penn State Dairy Science Club members prepare pedigrees and the sale catalogue for the annual Nittany Lion Fall Classic. They are (l to r): standing, Mary Keith and Dave Mattocks. Seated, Dwayne Stoltzfus, Bob Barley, Bill Curly and Tom Wiker. Additional members working on the project but not on this photo are: John Haun, Tom McCauley and Terri Packard.

Willard Wows UDIA Annual Meeting Crowd

ROSEMONT, IL. — "You've got the right man for the job," said television personality Willard Scott, who is the American Dairy Association spokesman for cheese and butter, in an address to 400 luncheon diners at the recent United Dairy Industry Association (UDIA) annual meeting in Nashville.

Citing the evidence, Scott told the charmed crowd that he "puts butter on butter" and that "butter is what oleo would like to be."

According to Scott, he is just as fond of cheese as he is butter. When he films the fall cheese and spring cheeseburger commercials, he admits to looking forward to eating all the food props...and usually does.

"I cannot tell you enough how proud I am to be associated with your product," Scott said. "It's amazing how everything changes but the cow. She just sort of stands there and does her thing if you do your thing."

He recounted his respect for farming, his lifelong love of good food and his hope that if he gets to heaven, "there will be no bran muffins."

Scott remained after his remarks to pose for pictures with UDIA delegates, spouses and staffs. Those attending each received an autographed copy of his cookbook, Willard Scott's All-American Cookbook and environmentally sensitive areas, and to acquire land for county and municipal parks.

"Chester County is losing 90 acres of open space every day," Hausmann told those gathered at the group's West Chester headquarters. "We are turning our rolling hills into rolling subdivisions. Many of our meadows and woodlands are being paved over for shopping centers. While we can't stop growth, we can plan for it and balance it in a better way than we have. We must save some of the open land that remains for our children and for their children, before it is too late. Once the land is gone, it is gone forever."

Hausmann served as a member of the Task Force on Open Space and The Environment. The task force was appointed by the Chester County Commissioners to research the growth and development in Chester County and to develop recommendations on how to preserve some of the remaining open land in the county.

The group chose "SOS", the international distress signal, as their campaign logo to dramatize the need for urgency.

The bipartisan citizens group has already won endorsements for their efforts from many of the leading Chester County organizations. "Every day," said Hausmann, "we receive calls from organizations endorsing this project. It's incredible. Even several developers are supporting this campaign, because this is something that is good for the county and everyone in it."

Linda Peterson, Executive Director of the campaign, told those gathered, "We are very excited by the people who are coming forward to help. There are so many people who are as concerned about open space preservation as we are."

Hausmann echoed her sentiments. "I am amazed at how strongly people feel about Chester County and about preserving some of the land while we still can. We are getting volunteers from every part of the community: Republicans, Democrats, young, old, rich, poor, you name it. Most exciting of all, many people who have never been involved in politics before — myself included — are offering to help. And we hope it is just the beginning."

The Save Open Space campaign has divided the county into seventeen regions and named coordinators for each region. In many areas, Peterson said, there is already a full committee at work spreading the word about the campaign, planning phone banks and other promotional activities to encourage people to vote "yes" on the referendum to save open space.

Breeding Heifers Artificially Is Profitable

On many dairy farms, first calf heifers make up 30% or more of the milking herd. Because of this, they are a major source of replacements for the herd.

The younger, non-lactating heifers, if they are the offspring of good genetic matings, are the most superior animals on the farm - even if they are not yet producing milk.

Heifers are also the most fertile animals on the farm. They have the potential to give the highest conception rates on expensive semen from good bulls.

For these reasons, heifers should be bred to the same good -- or better -- A.I. proven bulls that you would consider using on your better cows.

Another argument for using good A.I. bulls over herd sires is that A.I. sires undergo some very intense mating, selecting and testing procedures. Because of this, their daughters produce an average of about 1175 pounds more milk per year than daughters from non-A.I. herd bulls.

By using good, A.I. proven bulls you are more sure of the genetics that will be transmitted to the offspring, and of the fertility of the bull. There is also less risk of spreading infection with A.I., and less risk of being injured by a bull.

Because of the risk of spreading infection it is not advisable to use a cleanup bull to settle non-breeders. The reason some cows don't breed may be due to infection, and the bull could spread that infection to other cows, which could make a bad breeding problem even worse.

What kind of bull should you use on your heifers? Personal preferences will play a large part in many cases. In some cases you may want to select bulls that help build strong pedigrees. In other cases you may prefer high PTA (formerly high PD) bulls that also have a history of siring smaller calves or have the potential to correct certain type traits. A portion of the herd could -- and should -- be bred to unproven young sires that are being sampled by A.I. units.

Because of all the special matings and intense screening undergone by most young sires, they almost certainly will become some of our best bulls of tomorrow -- even though they are not yet proven nor inactive service. Sampling these young sires now, gives you a headstart on the better now, gives you a headstart on the better genetics of tomorrow. Remember too, chances are, the poorest of these young sires is probably as good as the average A.I. bull in active service today.

Earlier, I compared the superiority of A.I. proven bulls (all ages) to non-A.I. herd bulls. The same advantage exists with young sample sires, as shown by 1988 USDA-DHIA genetic evaluations. The PD$ of first evaluation A.I. bulls was $50 compared to a negative $5 for non-A.I. bulls. That's a $55 advantage for using young sample sires. The difference would be even greater if high PD proven bulls were used.

It goes without saying that if heifers are bred to good A.I. proven bulls, or to some young sample sires, they need to be well managed in order for their inherited genetics to have the opportunity to express itself and for you to have the opportunity to cash in on what the good genetics have to offer. That means heifers need to be healthy, well fed -- not fat -- and properly housed.

Recently, I had the opportunity to observe some severely damaged lung tissue of a young poor doing goat that probably had a bout with respiratory problems earlier in its life. Its lungs were scarred beyond repair and the poor critter would have suffered from his lung damage the rest of its life. The same can happen to a calf, and in spite of the good genetics it inherited -- and the good semen you bought -- it will never be able to reach its true genetic potential.

A similar thing can happen to the udders of heifers if you get them too fat between puberty and breeding age -- between 7-15 months of age. Excess energy at this stage of life encourages the calf to lay down fatty tissue in the udder and prevents the development of secretory tissue. This can cut first lactation production by 1500 pounds or more, and some people believe production is reduced in future lactations as well.

The point is, breed your heifers well and then manage them well so as not to put a lid on their potential performance.

The next challenge is to catch the heifers in heat, to restrain them without too much excitement so you can examine them, inseminate them and treat them. Hopefully, they will have conceived, and will deliver a healthy calf.

If heat detection is a problem, consider heat synchronization as a method for concentrating your efforts -- and excitement -- into a smaller block of time, for better detection and more precise timing of insemination. Needless to say, good restraint facilities will make your job much easier; they will also keep heifers quieter, thereby improving the opportunity for conception.

Well-bred heifers are your best animals on the farm -- your here of tomorrow. Treat them as such for your sake, and for theirs.

Meeting To Discuss Current Feed Situation

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Feed quality and quantity has been drastically affected by the unusual growing conditions of 1989, crop diseases, weed infestation, weather damage and maturity. Farmers are already feeling the impact of this and are finding it more difficult to sustain milk flow.

Many farmers are going into the winter with little to no hay in storage and the hay that is available is high priced and lower in quality.

These conditions will dictate the need for some major adjustments in dairy rations.

A meeting has been set for November 2, 1989, 7 p.m. at the New Hollard Auction Center (the new facility behind the fence and across Jackson Street from the New Holland Sales Stables) to discuss the impact conditions will have on the way dairy farmers feed.

Dairymen and all those who assist dairymen in balancing feed rations are invited to attend the meeting. Speaking on the current feed situation will be Dr. Richard Adams of Penn State, and Glenn Shirk, Dairy Extension Agent. Discussion will be open to all who attend.

"Insights" Discontinued

Producers will receive industry and association news through the monthly "National Wool Grower" magazine, which is free to members of federated state sheep organizations.

$8.00 PER BU. OFFERED FOR SOYBEANS

if they pass our low-toxin test.

ALSO PREMIUM PRICES FOR CORN, HAY and other livestock feed.

WHY? IT IS VERY SIMPLE. IT IS WORTH MUCH MORE. That kind is usually rich in minerals and trace elements because non toxic feed was usually grown with good organic mineralized fertilizer like ours which produces from 70 to 90 bu. soybeans per A, 100 to 150 bu. spletz, and has reached 250 to 300 bu. corn per acre, all with low input farming and some of it was without herbicides.

Using such feed, the livestock do better in both health and production, and it takes less bought minerals because the minerals are in the crops in better balance than high priced bought minerals because the creator knows better than man.

Smart livestock farmers really want this feed which makes the price high. We have the buyers.

SAME IS TRUE WITH PRODUCE. The demand is growing fast, even by chain stores, because housewives are sick and tired of being sick and tired including their family.

Apply our fertilizer and soil conditioner in the fall to have more time for conditioning. It doesn't dissapate. Free literature.

Now There's A Farmer In Your Area Who Can Make Any Business Loan The Bank Can.

Since 1917, farmers have taken kindly to Farm Credit because we're owned and controlled by people who really understand your business.

Farmers. Just like yourself. Thing was, we didn't exactly lay out a Sunday dinner spread of loans. Our menu was limited, and we knew it.

So recently we overhauled our lending system. We now offer competitive rates and options for loans we never could offer before.

Adjustable rate mortgages.
Revolving lines of credit.
Variable and fixed rate loans.

Terms of 30 days to 30 years. There's even a variety of services including insurance plans.

Some things do remain the same, however. The Farm Credit loan officer you talk to still makes most of the decisions.

And chances are he can do it faster than most bankers can say "bureaucracy."

So think about this for a moment. Who would you rather deal with for your next loan? A banker who merely wants your business. Or a farmer who knows it.

her studies at Millersville University. The daughter of Ken and Esther Meck, Meck is majoring in chemistry.

Kimberly Smith and Melissa Garber, Lancaster County queen alternates, each received a $300 scholarship. Garber is the daughter of James and Martha Garber of Mount Joy, and Smith is the daughter of Thomas and Susan Smith of Christiana.

In other business, Roger Garber reported that the net margin for fiscal year 1989 was $9,605. The figure, up significantly from 1988, reflected the sale of Winross trucks, which were purchased in 1988 for a fund raiser. The purchase cost for the trucks appeared in the 1988 budget.

Shirley High of Rheemstown reported sales from the association's Ephrata Fair booth as being $4,741.22. This year's fair goers paid out nearly $2,000 more for chicken corn soup and chicken and turkey sandwiches than they did in 1988.

Elected to serve terms on the Lancaster County Poultry Association Board of Directors were, from left, Guy Martin, Milton Landis, Mike Harrold (seated), and Clyde Slaymaker.

1989 Farmland Preservation Recognition Awards will be presented and original art and posters will be auctioned. The Trust invites members, guests and anyone interested in the protection of Lancaster County's countryside to attend.

Ticket prices are $12.00 per person and can be ordered through Lancaster Farmland Trust, Lancaster Conservation Center, 128 East Marion Street, P.O. Box 1562, Lancaster, PA 17603, (717) 293-0707, or through any member of the Board of Trustees.

Lancaster Farmland Trust Kicks Off Membership Drive

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — The Lancaster Farmland Trust is embarked upon its first major Membership Campaign on October 24. The trust sent membership appeals to 6,000 Lancaster City and County residents, with an additional 10,000 to follow in November.

The Trust hopes to triple its membership by Christmas and reach its goal of 1000 members by early spring. Alan Musselman, executive director of the Trust, feels this is a goal the Trust can reach. "Our membership is currently several hundred members strong, and includes a wide variety of citizens. Farmers, city & suburban residents, young and old, are all concerned with farmland preservation and growth, issues that our organization addresses. As we familiarize more people with the Lancaster Farmland Trust through this campaign, our membership will increase accordingly. I believe the people of Lancaster care deeply about this countryside and want to help."

The Lancaster Farmland Trust has taken a leading role in Lancaster County farmland preservation. Using private dollars to secure conservation easements and purchase entire farms for resale to farm families, the Trust has saved over 1200 acres of farmland. They have expanded their land-saving activities and operations, and have hired a staff person in charge of membership development and fundraising to build a sustainable future for the Trust.

The Lancaster Farmland Trust is a private, non-profit, member-supported organization dedicated to the preservation of Lancaster County's farmland and unique heritage. The Trust is located at The Lancaster Conservation Center, 128 East Marion Street, Lancaster, directly behind the public Library. For further information, please call the Trust offices, 293-0707.

Grange Master Opens State Convention

UNIONTOWN (Fayette Co.) — Pennsylvania State Grange Master, William H. Ringler, opened the 117th Annual State Session with many words of appreciation. The leader gave his annual address to about 600 Grange delegates and guests in Uniontown, Pennsylvania.

Ringler stated, "During the next three days, the action of this delegate body, and the decisions you make, will have lasting effects." He continued, "Stands need to be taken and positions established in areas of Agriculture, on matters of dairy and BST, supply management, land liability and ASCS programs." He stated that the auto insurance issue is one of prime concern, as well as pesticide management, water quality and environmental concerns. "These need to be addressed not alone by legislation, but by our Subordinate Granges," Ringler said.

He continued by discussing the importance of Leadership/Membership training meetings. He stated that these meetings have been conducted in all eight regions, and are currently being evaluated. New goals and initiatives have been set for membership drives. According to Ringler, "Through the work of the dedicated membership teams, Deputies and Masters, there has been 1,679 new members installed."

Ringler takes pride in the junior and youth members of the Grange. He said, "The future of the Pennsylvania State Grange is in the hands of our junior and youth members." A child can become a member of the Grange at the age of five.

He went on to compliment the cooperation of all the committees including the Deaf Activities Committee, Women's Activities Committee, Lecturer's Committee, Legislative Committee and all of the Committees. "I appreciate those who represent the Grange on membership, animal rights, farm safety, land preservation and conservation meetings. This is what makes the Grange work," he commented.

The master concluded his address by granting his appreciation to all who contributed to making the 117th Annual State Session an astounding success.

Agway Holds Annual Meeting In Syracuse

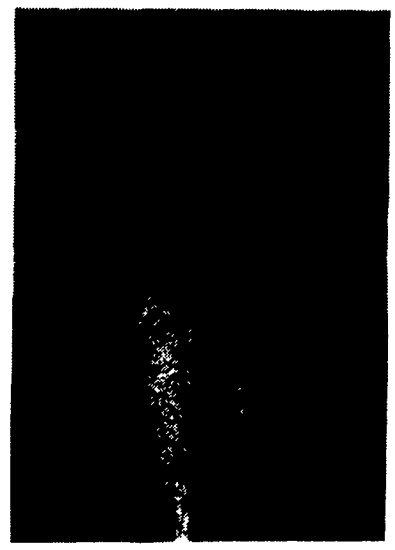
SYRACUSE, N.Y. — Agway members attending the 25th Annual Meeting in Syracuse, N.Y., October 26-27, learned that the farmer-owned cooperative had increased sales and revenues and lowered net margins for the year ending June 30, 1989.

William A. Hiller, Agway president and chief executive officer, reported consolidated sales and revenues exceeded $3.2 billion, up $354 million over the previous year, while net margins from continuing operations amounted to $11.1 million, down $8.6 million from the previous year.

Hiller said the reduction in earnings was primarily a result of a warmer than normal winter and a very wet spring in much of the Northeast.

The Agway leader reported strong performances from the cooperative's diversified businesses, including food, energy, and financial services.

Curtice Burns Foods, a major subsidiary that processes and markets fruits and vegetables, produced record earnings, capitalizing on the strengths of its regional brand foods. Another subsidiary, H.P. Hood a major supplier of milk and other dairy products, had increased sales volume but continued to experience some of the challenges facing many milk processors in the Northeast.



William Hiller

Hiller acknowledged that a change in relationship is currently being worked out between Hood and Agri-Mark, a New England dairy cooperative, based on differing business goals.

"Agway's diversified businesses were a major contributor to the overall financial strength this year," Hiller stated. Nearly $7 million was added to shareholder's equity. He reported new records in sales of Agway securities and payment of dividends and interest to Agway investors.

Hiller reported the restructuring of the cooperative's Agri-Services business is continuing as adjustments are made to adapt to the changing farm business environment in many rural communities.

"Our business growth in the Delmarva Peninsula has exceeded our expectations with the integration of Agway facilities into Milford Fertilizer Company in Delaware, which was acquired last year by Agway," he said.

The new fertilizer storage and deep water terminal in Philadelphia is complete. More than 200,000 tons of fertilizer material is expected to move through the facility annually, taking advantage of the lowest possible transportation costs, Hiller said.

Agway's seed business is growing rapidly through acquisitions and expansions, Hiller reported. Agway recently entered an agreement with United Agri Products to streamline and reduce costs of warehousing and distributing agricultural chemicals in the Northeast.

Berks County Extension Celebrates History, Looks To Future

BY VAL VAN TASSEL
Berks Co. Correspondent

READING (Berks Co.) — Staff and friends of the Berks County Cooperative Extension gathered at the Berks 4-H Center last Monday night to celebrate 75 years of extension education and look forward to the next 25 years. After a progressive dinner, which included not only food but contests and educational exhibits, the 260 diners sat back to enjoy a slide show of Berks Extension history.

Extension agent Pat Richie, who is better known for his work in ag engineering, produced the multi-media trip down memory lane. Music from each decade including such stand bys as "Don't Sit Under the Apple Tree" and "Rock Around the Clock", highlighted the presentation. There were a surprising number of old photos of local farm families, events, and even 4-H projects. There wasn't much audience reaction to the earliest photos although a black-and-white picture of a pen of triple chinned hogs produced a few chuckles.

Extension director Herb Wetzel then introduced Dr. Wayne Schutjer, associate dean and associate director of extension, to give the audience a sense of direction for the next 25 years. "Berks County is blessed with a particularly fine staff and you folks have had a banner year. But as Joe Paterno says we've got to keep getting better or we get worse," Schutjer opened.

"We are making some fundamental decisions to change extension toward an issue oriented approach. We hope to identify problems and work toward solutions. We have seven problem areas we hope to address.

The first is water quality. Sixty percent of the water in rural areas doesn't meet the proper standards."

Judith Schwank was honored for her achievement award with this Nittany Lion statue.

Dr. Wayne Schutjer, associate dean and associate director of Extension was the keynote speaker at the 75th anniversary of the Berks Co. Cooperative Extension. Herbert Wetzel, left, is the county extension director and the master of ceremonies for the program.

"We also wish to work in the area of nutrition, health and food safety. The three leading causes of deaths of adults in our country are heart disease, cancer and stroke. These can be helped in a large part by diet. We also have over 2½ million cases of food born disease in Pennsylvania last year. We can help in these areas.

"The third problem is forest resources. Pennsylvania has the largest stand of usable hardwoods in the world but most of it is not well managed. It also is harvested, sent to Europe where it is made into furniture and then it comes back to the U.S. We need to create greater value added right here in the state. We also need to manage our forest areas for multiple use including recreation and hunting.

"The fourth area is the maintaining and enhancing of Pennsylvania communities. Rural areas are losing employment opportunities and are having increasing difficulties providing necessary public services. We would like to help this situation as well.

"We also want to expand our work in human resources. We want to continue with 4-H but we want to address some of the problems of youth today, teen pregnancy, suicide and drug use. We can't solve these problems on our own but we can give others the benefit of our experience. We've learned that it's important to build self esteem among youth.

"We also wish to work with adults in low income brackets such as displaced homemakers.

"We would like to teach other groups and government agencies how to use their volunteers. We have over 50,000 volunteers and they contribute a tremendous amount to our organization.

"The sixth area is to contribute to the economic and social well being of Pennsylvania families. We hope to help with issues like family financial planning and aging parents.

"Finally we want to continue to increase the competitiveness and profitability of Pennsylvania agriculture. We have over $500 of raw farm product for every person meaning we are nearly self sufficient. Our agriculture requires high investment and a lot of management. We want to keep technology flowing to the farmers of Pennsylvania.

"Now we are coming to you folks to help us refine this program. We will be sending out questionnaires and we want you to tell us what you think of this program. Extension has always been a partnership with you and we don't want that to change," Schutjer stated.

Berks Extension Board of Directors President Paul Wanner ran a short business meeting. Six adults and two youth were selected for terms on the board of directors. Karen Mohn was the only new adult member to be named. Also selected were Sylvia Bloomquist, Beth Hartman, Dennis Cooper, Doris Howerter, and Rita Lesher. Youth members will be Scott Youse and Michele Wojszwillo.

Beverly Vos, Randy Balthaser, and Gwen Perry were honored for their service on the board.

Judith Schwank received a Nittany lion statute for her state achievement award. Schwank was honored for her water quality work in the Oley Valley and her horticultural efforts.

Schwenk also gave out master gardener awards to Claire Kraiman, Karolyn Lucero, Joan Silagy, Kathy Rock, and Steve Krupa. According to Swank, master gardners must attend 12 three-hour classes and have at least 50 hours of volunteer work in the horticultural area to receive this designation.

Agway Holds Annual Meeting

"We are committed to remain in the ag chemical business," Hiller stated. "To do this, we needed to insure access to new technology and products, reduce product distribution costs, and reduce liability in warehousing and handling of ag chemicals."

Hiller reported that Agway's Energy Group continues to grow. In the Financial Services Group, the insurance company had a good turnaround year focusing on farm owner and property underwriting in the Northeast. Telmark, Agway's leasing company, completed a record year and has become a major supplier of financial services in the rural marketplace in 17 states where it does business.

The Agway president credited former leaders of the cooperative with building a solid foundation during the past 25 years. Agway was formed by a merger of three cooperatives in 1964.

Hiller said a number of current issues face farmers and Agway, including continued dairy industry consolidation, major changes in world commodity trading, and environmental and food safety concerns. He pledged Agway will be involved in resolving these issues.

Agway Chairman Ralph H. Heffner, a Pine Grove dairyman and fruit grower, called on farmers and their cooperatives to be active in debates about food safety, animal welfare, and environmental issues. He said farmers must counteract misinformation about these issues and speak up for their industry which provides the safest, most nutritious food supply in the world.

Seven farmers were elected to the 18-member Agway board during the two-day meeting. Other events included an address by Earl Butz, former secretary of agriculture and retired dean of agriculture at Purdue University.

Several thousand farmers attended the meeting and the popular farm trade show. Many were involved in seminars concerning sustainable commercial agriculture and managing high producing dairy herds.

Entertainment was provided Thursday evening by country music star Lee Greenwood and comedian Andy Andrews.

Agway, a farm supply and food marketing cooperative headquartered in Syracuse, N.Y., is owned by 99,000 farmer members in 12 northeastern states.

COUNT ON CARGILL!

Selected Cargill corn hybrids pretreated for 1990 planting to help...

Reduce the Risk of Herbicide Injury

Advantage™ Seed Safener from FMC Corporation will be applied to Cargill corn hybrids.

Advantage Seed Safener has been shown in greenhouse and field testing to reduce the risk of injury to field corn from active ingredients including: alachlor, barban, butylate, chlorimuron, chlorsulfuron, clomazone, cyanizine, diclofop-methyl, EPTC, fluazifop-butyl, imazaquin, imazethapyr, isouron, metolachlor, pendimethalin, trifluralin and vernolate. Some of these active ingredients are contained in the following herbicides registered for use on soybeans or corn:

Soybeans	Corn
Canopy	Bicep
Command	Bladex
Commence	Dual
Preview	Eradicane
Prowl	Extrazine
Pursuit	Lariat
Scepter	Lasso
Squadron
Treflan

Active ingredients may be contained in other herbicides. Always read and follow herbicide label directions. Herbicides listed are registered trademarks of various manufacturers

The risk of injury from carryover herbicides used on soybeans, as well as those applied directly to corn, may be reduced by planting pretreated Cargill hybrids.

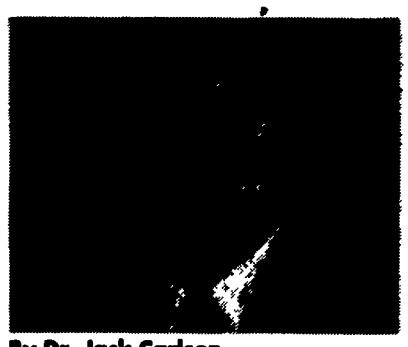
This approach addresses problems ranging from "hot spots" in fields to widespread drought-induced herbicide injury.

The following Cargill hybrids demonstrated optimum performance when used in conjunction with Advantage, and will be pretreated for 1990:

Hybrid	Relative Day Range
3477	94- 99
4227	100-105
4327	101-106
5157	101-106
6227	111-117
6927	113-118
7877	114-119
7993	115-120
8027	115-120

Pretreated Cargill hybrids cost $4 per unit or about $1 more per acre than the same hybrids without the safener treatment.

A widely-used herbicide registered for use on soybeans was applied preplant incorporated prior to corn planting to simulate a high level of soybean carryover. Notice the reduced injury in the row where Advantage was applied.



By Dr. Jack Carlson
Corn Product Manager

Plantability and handling of pretreated seed corn is similar to untreated seed corn. The addition of Agrox or graphite is not recommended.

Research and testing by Cargill, FMC and leading universities has indicated that Cargill hybrids pre-treated with Advantage may benefit many corn growers.

Since this approach involves a new interaction among seed corn, herbicides, a seed safener and the environment, Cargill will require growers to sign a "Grower Use Agreement" acknowledging that:

1. Herbicide use label and performance liability shall remain solely that of the herbicide manufacturer.

2. Cargill does not warrant any level of herbicidal tolerance for Cargill hybrids pretreated with Advantage Seed Safener.

Your Cargill representative has "Grower Use Agreements" and more information about performance and availability.

Pennsylvania Receives

sylvania's Agricultural Conservation Easement (ACE) Program as the nation's most far-reaching farmland preservation program. State Representative Samuel Morris, State Senator Noah Wenger and the Pennsylvania Farmers Association (PFA) were also honored for their efforts in developing and promoting the program.

"Pennsylvania's ACE Program serves as an outstanding example of the merits of public and private cooperation in protecting our agricultural resources," AFT President Ralph Grossi said. "It has very quickly become a national model."

The awards, first presented in 1984 to honor outstanding efforts to protect the nation's agricultural resources, were presented by AFT President Grossi and Chairman of the Board Patrick Noonan at a luncheon ceremony at the annual meeting of AFT's Board of Directors in Washington, DC.

"I'm very proud to accept this award on behalf of all the people in Pennsylvania who really care about our number one industry," Governor Casey said. "Farmland preservation means more than nostalgia for the past, it makes good economic sense for the future as well."

The ACE Program, for which Pennsylvania voters approved a $100 million bond issue in 1987, compensates farmers for restricting their land to agricultural use. After several years in creation, the program was signed into law by Governor Casey in 1988.

When studies in the early 1980s began to show that much of the state's best farmland was being lost to development, the Pennsylvania Farmers' Association joined with other farm and conservation groups to create a program that would give farmers an alternative to selling their land out of agriculture. Representative Morris and Senator Wenger took the lead in gathering support for such a program in the state legislature. A major education campaign, spearheaded by PFA, introduced this innovative idea to citizens across the state. With the leadership of Governor Casey's administration, these many cooperative efforts were rewarded with success in 1987.

"I'm pleased to report that this program is already at work," Governor Casey said. "The key to its success is that the farming community itself is committed to this program."

Other recipients of the 1989 AFT Agricultural Conservation Awards are as follows:

PUBLIC EDUCATION

Max Schnepf, Ankeny, IA, for his work with the Soil and Water Conservation Society and dedication to communicating the needs and methods of conservation.

"Farmlands on the Edge," a documentary produced by the New Jersey Network, for addressing the importance of farmland protection in a compelling and well-documented manner.

Chesapeake Bay Foundation's Clagett Farm Education Center, Upper Marlboro, MD, for educating farmers and the general public about the interrelationship between agriculture and surrounding natural resources.

LAND PROTECTION

Resourceful Farming Demonstration Project of the Iowa Natural Heritage Foundation for helping farmers to evaluate environmentally-sound and economically-profitable farming systems.

Montana Land Reliance for its work to slow the loss of the state's agricultural land by providing private, voluntary conservation options for landowners.

Otto Teller, Sonoma County, CA, for his leadership in private conservation efforts both on his own farm and through his active participation with conservation organizations.

"We think it's very important to recognize the dedication and enthusiasm shown by our award winners," AFT President Grossi said. "We hope their efforts will serve as both a model and as encouragement for others who care about the future of our agricultural resources."

The 1989 AFT Agricultural Conservation Awards are supported by a generous grant from Kraft General Foods, Inc.

American Farmland Trust

The American Farmland Trust is the only national, nonprofit membership organization dedicated solely to the protection of farmland. Founded in 1980 in response to the shrinking agricultural land base, today AFT's concerns extend to soil erosion and other economic and environmental pressures on the land.

The organization approaches these issues through three project areas: public education, policy research and development, and private land conservation transactions.

In the nine years since its inception, AFT has become a highly-respected national organization with an influential voice in farmland conservation policy issues at all levels of government and a portfolio of land protection projects across the United States.

Annual membership dues are $15, and should be sent to AFT's national office at 1920 N. St., NW, Suite 400, Washington, DC 20036.

Following Army flight school, he served a tour as a helicopter pilot and engineer officer in the U.S. Army.

In 1973, Rush began his career with Farm Credit first as a loan officer for Northeastern Farm Credit and then later as a credit manager. In 1982, he transferred to York Farm Credit Service and became president in 1984.

Jay V. Rush

Rush has served on the PAFC board of directors since 1986. His most recent responsibilities include chairman of the finance committee and a member of the Joint Education Coordinating Committee. He also serves as treasurer of the Pennsylvania FFA Foundation, Inc. and represents the Pennsylvania Farm Credit Service on the Penn State Ag Advisory Board.

Rush succeeds Robert M. Dever, Assistant General Manager for Atlantic Dairy Cooperative, who served as PAFC president from 1986-1989. Also elected to office at the PAFC annual meeting included Glenn Olson, Ridgeway, PA, as vice president.

Robert Pardoe, Milton, Pa. is the organization's treasurer and Carl Buckhout is the PAFC Executive Director.

to relax on the farm in the beautiful fall surroundings before starting on the road again.

As it turned out, Bruce Jackson grew up with access to his grandfather's farm in the heart of hog country in Iowa. But his music tallents took him away from the farm as he won several national contests in piano and vocal performances. Bruce met his wife Brenda at the time he was developing his music profession.

Brenda Jackson got her early start in music as part of the Murk Family singers from Wheaton IL. The Merk family was discovered on "The Ted Mack Original Amateur Hour," produced by CBS Televison. Bruce and Brenda sang with the Murk family for a while after they were married and remember preforming at the National Farm Bureau Convention.

"Actually, being on the road all the time just to entertain soon gets a little hollow," Bruce said. "Brenda and I thought we wanted to raise our family at home. But somehow our hearts have been burdened for the break-up of the family in America. And so here we are on the road from one end of the country to the other, hoping by our family oriented programs and seminars to have some impact on this situation."

The Jacksons have been invited to sing in Eastern Block Countries and in Europe. They plan a trip to England, France and Germany next March.

Of course, the whole family sings. And one of the most often asked questions prior to a concert is, "Will the children sing?" Brittany has already recorded an album for children and according to her father gets the greatest ovations.

But at this visit to the farm, while the adults talked, the Jackson children weren't around to cast any shadows. They were off with the Brubaker children, Blake, age three, and Crystal, age five, (Heather age 8 was in school), getting first-hand experience with peacocks, kittens, puppies, "little cows," and...dirt.

The Lancaster County Holstein Assn. banquet is scheduled for Tuesday, November 14, at 6:45 p.m. at the Country Table Restaurant in Mt. Joy. Reservations may be made by contacting Brubaker at 2889 Zink Road, Manheim 17545. Phone: (717) 653-2612. Or call Glenn Shirk, Lancaster County Agent at (717) 394-6851.

Brubaker said it was Shirk's disappointment with the diminishing ag programs for youth that prompted the scheduling of the Jackson family. "This is a program the whole family can enjoy, especially the children," Brubaker said. "I must admit, we don't plan to do much business at this meeting. But if you miss the kind of wholesome family music that was characteristic of such family groups as the Osmonds and the Carpenters, then you will not want to miss this unique concert," Brubaker said.

Yes, two worlds met here on the farm Monday morning, and they parted all the better for the meeting. And when the Jackson Family sings next month for the Lancaster County Holstein breeders, you can be sure they'll know where milk comes from.

Warden Daughter Tops New Holland Sale

BY PAT PURCELL

NEW HOLLAND (Lancaster Co.) — C. Boltonia Warden Julie topped the annual New Holland Show Sale with a final bid of $7,750. Gordon Wood of Gor-Wood-D Acres of Mansfield, Pa. added Julie, another Excellent, to his herd which has a BAA of 108.2.

"I saw her at Belleville and bid $7,100 for her, but didn't get her and I've just had her on my mind," said Wood. Test and protein were the reason Wood pursued this 4-year-old dry cow. Her most recent lactation was 4.5 butterfat test and a 3.8 protein test.

Consignors of this grand champion of the New Holland sale were Charlie Myers, Danny Albright and Harold Welk served as showman. Myers said he hated to loose Julie, but she won't be lonely in her new home. Gor-Wood-D is home to 45 Excellents and 85 Very Goods.

Reserve grand champion of the show sold to Ken Diemer for $3,400. Consignors of the 6-year-old cow were Alfred Albright, Jerry Mahoney and David Kolb.

Orin Bender, Holstein breeder of Accident, Md. served as judge.

On 25 of the top show heifers and cows prices averaged $2,072 per head which included the grand champion and the reserve grand champion of the show. Average per head on 23 of the top show animals not including the champions was $1,767.

Chester County Farmers Enroll 50,000+ Acres In Ag Security Areas

WEST CHESTER (Chester Co.)— The Chester County Agricultural Development Council is pleased to announce that the October 10 approval of an Agricultural Security Area by the Elk Township Board of Supervisors gives Chester County in excess of 50,000 acres so-designated. Chester County now has 21 adopted Agricultural Security Areas with nearly 550 participating landowners. Another eight townships currently have agricultural districts pending local approval.

Participation in an Agricultural Security Area qualifies landowners to voluntarily apply to the Chester County Agricultural Land Preservation Board for the sale of agricultural conservation easements. In September, information packets including application forms, were sent to all eligible landowners. The Agricultural Land Preservation Board set a November 1 deadline for the first round of applications. For 1990, two cycles, with deadlines of May 1 and November 1, have been established. For further information or assistance with the designation of Agricultural Security Areas or the completion of easement sale applications, Chester County farmowners are encouraged to contact Ray Pickering, Director, Agricultural Preservation Board. Offices are located in the Paul Dague Agricultural and Natural Resource Center, 235 West Market Street, West Chester, phone number 215/344-6285.

Weekend Brings Firsts, Lasts To Lancaster County 4-H Livestock Clubs

BY LISA RISSER

NEW HOLLAND (Lancaster Co.) — Last weekend was a time of firsts and lasts. It was Heather Yoder's first time to have the grand champion at the Southeast District beef show, but her champion was the show's last as its existence comes to a close.

The curtain dropped on the show, which peaked at 200 steers, due to a lack of participation. Once the biggest beef show around, the Southeast District show has been drawing youth only from Chester and Lancaster counties for a number of years now. Also being discontinued is the New Holland Baby Beef Club, which would have had only one member next year.

The Southeast District beef show, which has a history of more than 45 years, also brought a first for Diane Musser of Elizabethtown, who showed her first reserve grand champion in the eight years she's been participating in the Lancaster County beef clubs.

Yoder, the 14-year-old daughter of Marian and Galen Yoder of Denver, selected her Angus-Chianina steer, Ace, at the Keystone International Livestock Exposition last year. A member of the New Holland and Red Rose baby beef clubs, Yoder is making her final appearance as a 4-H'er as other activities take up too much of her time to continue in 4-H.

The champion steer was purchased by Tim Kreider, representing Willie the Butcher, for $1.75 per pound. Yoder plans to use her earnings towards the purchase of a pleasure horse.

Musser, a member of the Woolies 4-H Club and Lancaster County 4-H Swine Club as well as the beef clubs, ran out of names and so didn't bother to name her Angus-Chianina cross. Her nameless winner impressed Darvin E. Boyd, vice president and director of Hamilton Bank's agri-finance department. Boyd purchased the 1,160-pound steer from the 16-year-old daughter of Harold and Judy Musser for $1.10 per pound and then donated it back to the beef clubs for their annual banquet.

A total of 36 steers were sold for $35,542.20 or an average of $.84 per pound. The volume steer buyer was Willie the Butcher, who bought eight animals, while Stoltzfus Meats purchased four steers.

More firsts, lasts

The Lancaster County lamb roundup last Friday presented Jodie Weaver of New Holland with her last county champion of the year. The county's beef roundup, held earlier in the day, saw the 17-year-old daughter of Larry and Barb Weaver and Carol Diffenbach winning the coveted county champion beef showman title. This honor makes Weaver the last in her family to receive the award as her sister, Kristin Chupp, and father won the award in previous years.

Weaver was particularly proud of her champion, a Suffolk cross wether, because she selected him herself. She plans to bank the $501.50 she received from top bidder Darvin E. Boyd of Hamilton Bank and put it toward her college education. Boyd donated the lamb back to the Woolies Club to be butchered for its annual banquet, held with the beef clubs.

For being top county beef showman, Weaver received the Intell steer from Lancaster Newspapers' Intelligencer Journal. She was making plans last Saturday to leave soon after the sale to travel to Ohio and find a likely steer.

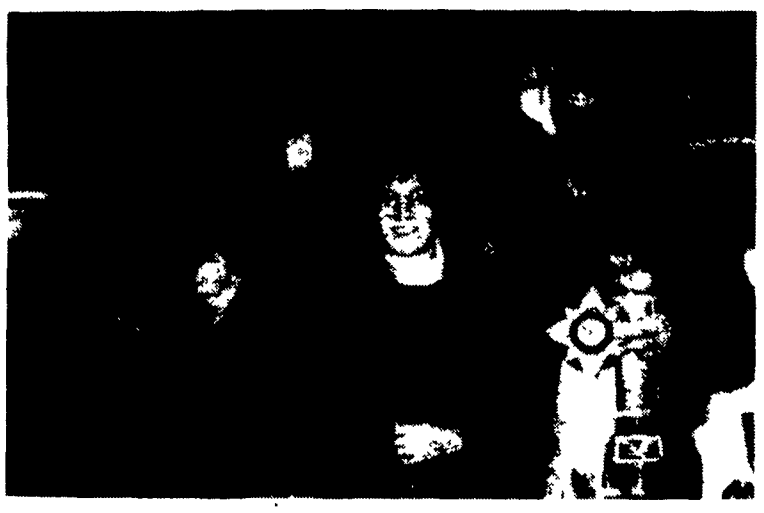
Amy Bollinger of Manheim also experienced a first when her Hampshire wether was named the reserve grand champion of the county roundup. The daughter of Eugene and Carol Bollinger, she walked her lamb often and had him jump hurdles. The second-year 4-H'er sold her lamb to Tim Kreider, representing Willie the Butcher. The 118-pound reserve champion brought $3.50 per pound.

The lamb sale grossed $8,378 on 81 lambs for an average of $1 per pound. Willie the Butcher purchased 20 lambs, Walter Dunlap & Sons bought 19 lambs, Jack Godeck of Marlborough, N.J., took home 10 lambs, and New Holland Sales Stable purchased 9 lambs.

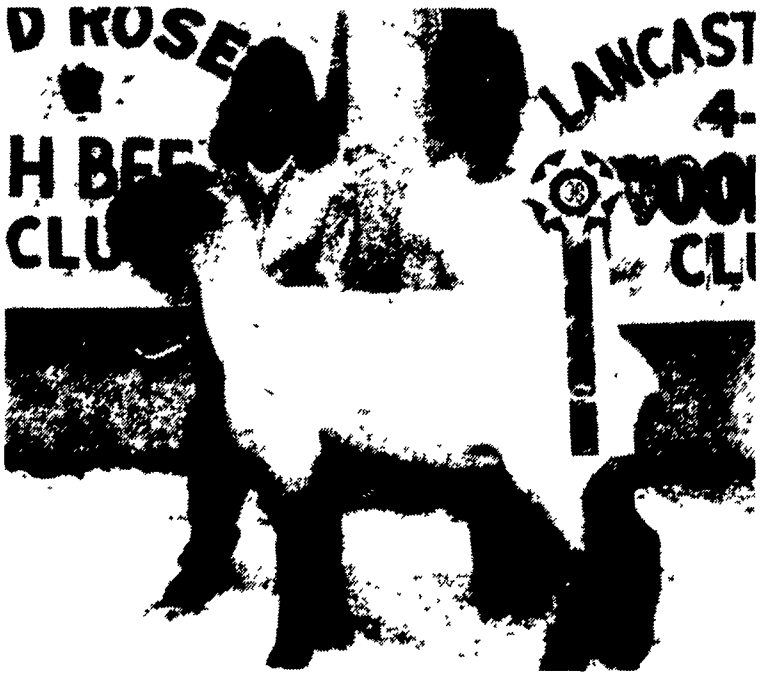
A partial list of the winners follows.

Jodie Weaver sold her grand champion lamb to Darvin E. Boyd, vice president and director of Hamilton Bank's agri-finance department, for $4.25 per pound.

Tim Kreider, representing Willie the Butcher, purchased the last grand champion of the Southeast District beef show. The show is being discontinued after more than 45 years due to lack of participation. At the halter of Ace is owner Heather Yoder of Denver.



The Angus-Chianina steer shown by Diane Musser was selected as the reserve grand champion of the Southeast District beef show. The steer was purchased by Darvin E. Boyd of Hamilton Bank for $1.10 per pound. Boyd donated the steer back to the county's beef clubs to be butchered for their annual banquet.



Ten-year-old Amy Bollinger of Manheim showed the Lancaster County reserve grand champion lamb at the county roundup. Her Hampshire wether was purchased for $3.50 per pound by Tim Kreider, representing Willie the Butcher.

Jodie Weaver of New Holland was named the county's best showman for 1989 during the Lancaster County beef roundup. Tom Holland, Intelligencer Journal farm reporter, presented her with a proxy of the Intell steer for the newspaper.

Integrated Pest Management

IPM, the agricultural strategy that balances economic, social, and environmental values to produce a quality product, has sparked interest in the farming community because, when applied properly, can reduce input costs, maintain economic crop yield levels and increase profits — a top priority in a period when crop prices are low and input costs are soaring.

The object of IPM is to optimize pest control while optimizing profits and its measure of effectiveness must be farmer profitability, according to Guy Zummo of the American Cyanamid Company, speaking at Thursday's gathering. IPM was widely used in the '60s and 70s mostly by fruit growers. Eighty percent of Pennsylvania's apple growers who have utilized IPM techniques for the past 20 years have reduced inputs costs by drastically reducing:

Miticide use by 80%
Insecticide use by 50%
Fungicide use by 30%.

These are the figures supplied by the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture (PDA). They have cut pesticide use while continuing to produce a high quality product. Apple orchards account for r early 33,000 acres in the state.

Other farmers have experienced similar success in a variety of other crops, such as cotton, alfalfa, corn, soybeans and many other fruits and vegetables.

Lee Bentz, President, Soil and Water Conservation Society, discussed the need for not only IPM in the agriculture enterprise, but also a total resource management practice to blend IPM with a conservation plan. By January 1, 1990, all farmers who participate in any government funded programs, if they to continue participation must have a conservation plan for their farm.

However, some conservation requirements conflicts with an IPM system. For example, a conservation plan relies on surface crop residue to prevent soil erosion. Crop residue is not an IPM technique and in fact becomes an open invitation to insects, pests and weeds in an IPM system. There are ways to compromise, according to Bentz, without continously plowing residue under by chisel plowing and alternating cultivation methods in fields.

Bentz pointed out that the government is cutting back on disaster relief funds and encourages farmers to buy crop insurance. However, one of the requirements of crop insurance is to prevent crop loss by spraying which directly opposes IPM techniques.

Bentz emphasized the need for farmers to consider all resources when initiating new practices.

Dennis Calvin, Asst. Professor of Entomology at Penn State University said tl at IPM does not advocate no pesticide use, but it does stress the judicious use of pesticides. There are many alternatives to pesticide use:

IPM employs:

—crop rotation
—manipulation of planting dates
—removal of crop residues
—modify harvest dates
—trap crops
—intercropping

IPM also utilizes biological controls such as parasites, predators and pathogens to control pests.

IPM does increase the complexity of management because IPM is information driven. For farmers to realize the full potential of IPM's benefits information must be gathered and accuracy is critical. Walter Peechatka, Director of the Bureau of Plant Industry, PA Department of Agriculture, discussed the current program being formulated by PDA to enducate farmers on the IMP practices. Also, ASCS may make available cost sharing funds to farmers to accelerate and facilitate the transition.

Brother, Sister Show Champion Lancaster County Roundup Steers

NEW HOLLAND (Lancaster Co.) — A sister and brother team from Lititz took home the top honors at the Lancaster County 4-H Beef round-up last Friday. Nicki High showed a crossbred to the grand championship title, while her brother, Casey, showed a purebred Angus that nabbed the reserve grand champion rosette. Judge Don Witt from Fayette County picked the winners from the lightweight and the middleweight classes respectively.

New Dairy Promotion Strategy For The '90s

BY PAT PURCELL

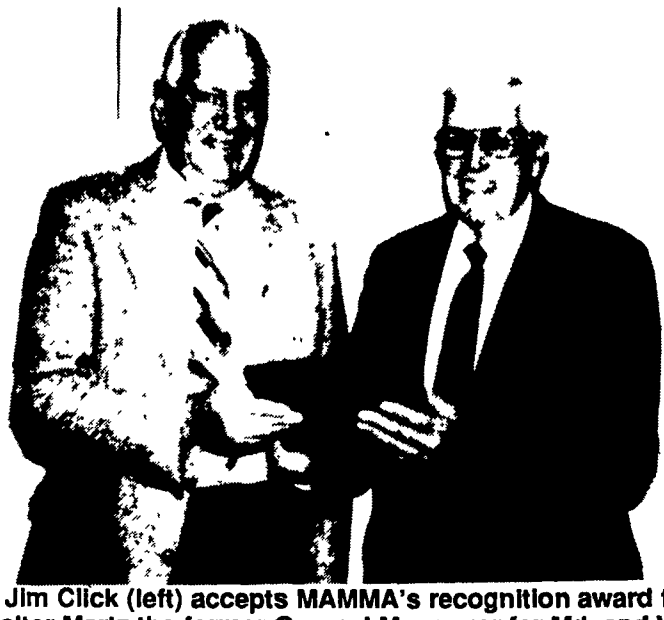
WILLOW STREET (Lancaster Co.) — "We are working together, trusting one another and sharing the same agenda to prevent the duplication of efforts through the coordination of dairy promotion programs," said Cynthia Carson speaking at the annual meeting of the Middle Atlantic Milk Marketing Association (MAMMA) held earlier this week in southern Lancaster County.

Carson, Chief Executive Officer of the National Dairy Board since January of this year, speaking of the newly formed Strategic Marketing Alliance (SMA), said, "The alliance has already pulled together the dairy industry which will increase the power around each organization to assure us that we get the most out of each marketing dollar."

The SMA is the union of dairy promotion groups to determine the best strategy to narrow the gap between dairy production and dairy product consumption.

"The dairy industry is in transition from being a commodity driven industry to a market driven industry," said Carson. "I understand that the dairy industry cannot be completely market driven because we do have a product. However, we need to focus our efforts on how we can best find markets for our product and which of our products can best accomodate the needs of the consumer."

"We must understand consumer atttitudes towards dairy products. Our consumer testing has told us that with consumers fat is now equal to salt as the top nutritional concern," explained Carson. "It is important to be market oriented and to understand what trends are developing."



Jim Click (left) accepts MAMMA's recognition award for Walter Martz the former General Mangager for Md. and Va. Milk Producers Association. Robert McSparran, (right) MAMMA Chairman, made the presentation at MAMMA's annual meeting.

Robert McSparran, (right) MAMMA Chairman, presents Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Tab (left) with an appreciation award for their service to MAMMA and to the dairy farmers of the Middle Atlantic Milk Marketing Area.

There may be some change in the structure of dairy promotion programs down the line, according to Carson and one thing industry members can be sure of is that dairy promotion in the '90's will be much different that what anyone has seen in the 80's.

Carson was asked, with the rising costs of advertising, if the 15 cents contribution might be increased.

In reply, Carson said, "I think it's best we concentrate on the 15 cents we have now and find ways in which we can most effectively use that. We need to work together to find the most efficient use of our funds on hand."

MAMMA honored three industry members for their dedication and support of MAMMA and the dairy farmers of the Middle Atlantic Milk Marketing Association:

—James R. Barnett, Atlantic Dairy Cooperative Members Relations Manager;

—Walter A. Martz, Former Chairman, Vice Chairman, Executive Committee member and board member of MAMMA. Martz sits on the National Dairy Promotion and Research Board and is a member of the Maryland and Virginia Milk Producers Association. (Award was accepted by Jim Click, former General Manager for Maryland and Virginia Milk Producers.)

—Lyle C. Tabb, former MAMMA Board of Director and former Maryland and Virginia Milk Producers Association.

Strause Named Beef Representative

BY VAL VANTASSEL
Berks Co. Correspondent

HAMBURG (Berks Co.) — The Berks County Cattleman's Association celebrated two firsts on October 20 at R. John's Olde Haus Restaurant. For the first time in the group's seven-year history they held a banquet meeting and they chose their first beef industry representative.

Alice Strauss, daughter of Harold and Marie Strauss, Hamburg R.D. 2, will help the association promote beef during in-store demonstrations the local fairs and festivals for the next year.

Alice, a sophomore at Hamburg Area High School, is the president and an eight-year member of the Berks 4-H Beef Club. She also belongs to the 4-H sheep and swine clubs and recently joined the Hamburg Area FFA. For the last three years she has had the reserve champion at the 4-H Beef Roundup and this year exhibited the grand champion market steer at the Oley Fair. Strauss hopes to enter the medical field while continuing to farm on the side.

Gerry Gammel, Womelsdorf, will be serving as Strauss' advisor.

After a delicious dinner featuring prime rib, 40 association members in attendance got some good news from Pennsylvania Cattlemen president Glenn Eberly. "Did you know that lean beef has about the same level of cholesterol as skinless chicken? Chicken with the skin on has more cholesterol than beef!"

Eberly stated that the beef industry has a public relations problem. "Very few people are aware of that fact. Make a guess on whether there are more beef or dairy cattle in the state of Pennsylvania. The right answer is beef. Many are in small herds of say five or ten. Because they're in such little groups people don't think about them. We need to let consumers know this information."

Animal rights is a hot issue according to Eberly. "We need to educate people on our side of the animal rights issue. The general public needs to know that we are taking care of our animals. After all if you don't take care of your animals they won't take care of you.

"The veal industry has a real image problem," Eberly stated. "We need to have a unified effort in this area. Some terribly restrictive laws have been proposed in this country. Legislators tend to listen better to organizations than to individuals so we need to work on these issues together."

Eberly also has been relatively pleased with the beef advertising that has been appearing. "The beef checkoff has been god sent. We have been using the money to help educate people about the importance of beef and to dispel the fallacies that surround it. Some folks questioned the use of stars like James Garner and Cybil Shepard in our T.V. commercials because of their expense. And it's true that they were expensive. But I feel they were effective. Before the commercials we found that people weren't ordering beef when dining out. It was more fashionable to order salad bars or sushi or some such thing. After the commercials, beef seemed to come back in style. I can't say beef consumption is back where it was years ago but we've stopped the slide."

Eberly offered farmers an opportunity to do a little promoting of their own. The Pennsylvania Beef Council is offering beef signs including farm names to folks at a discount price. The signs are a mild yellow and include the logo "Real Food for Real People." It costs $20,000 to $30,000 for billboards that are up for 30 days. The 4x8-foot signs cost $75 and can be ordered from the Pennsylvania Beef Council at (717) 545-6000.

Eberly also told the Berks farmers about the proposed Pennsylvania Beef Expo scheduled for March 28 and April 1, 1990. "The expo will include educational programs and a trade show. We are working on a medieval fair to show how beef has progressed from the middle ages to the present. The expo will also feature seminars for farmers."

The trade show is getting a lot of response. Rather than taking their exhibits to several events through the summer, people will be able to reach beef farmers by exhibiting at just one event.

Eberly concluded his presentation by reminding the cattlemen that the state organization is interested in their views. "Ours is a grassroots organization. We want and need your input."

President Sheila Miller conducted a short business meeting including the election of four members to the board of directors. Elected for three-year terms were Paul Holcombe, April Moll, and Bill Weist. Charles Nehf will be serving a one-year term.

Alice Strause was selected as Berks County Beef Industry Representative. Sheila Miller, president of the County Beef Association, and Glenn Eberly, president of the Pennsylvania Cattleman's Association congratulated her at the association's first banquet held October 21.

The Berks County Cattleman's Association held their first banquet on October 21. Among their activities was the election of board directors. They include (left to right) Gerl Gammel, Mike Firestine, Sheila Miller, April Moll and Paul Holcombe.

Century Farms Added To History Book

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Twenty-six Commonwealth farms were honored by the State Department of Agriculture as official Pennsylvania Century Farms during the third quarter of 1989. This brings to 1,391 the number of families that have been recognized statewide owning a family farm over 100 years old.

"Our farm families are the keystone of our state's economy," Secretary of Agriculture Boyd E. Wolff said. "They work very hard to keep agriculture Pennsylvania's number one industry. The Century Farms Program allows us to recognize their dedication and honor them for this achievement."

To qualify as a Century Farm, the farm must have been owned by the same family for at least 100 consecutive years, a family member must currently live on the farm, and the farm must consist of at least ten of the original acres or gross over $1,000 a year in the sale of farm products.

Wolff urged other families who might qualify for the Century Farm designation to call 1-800-AG-PENNA for an application and additional information.

Surrounded with pumpkins, gourds, Indian corn, and cornstalks, a flatbed hay wagon provides the ideal, rustic display area for the Lehman's seasonal decorative produce.

Pumpkin Season Flourishes At The Lehman's Roadside Market

BY JOYCE BUPP
York Co. Correspondent

WRIGHTSVILLE (York Co.) — Most of the fat, round jack-o-lantern pumpkins coloring country fields have found homes by this weekend, waiting with toothy grins for Halloween night.

But pumpkin season is not yet finished for the Ellsworth Lehman family of Wrightsville. Wagonloads of pale-orange neck pumpkins continue to add seasonal color, and promises of Thanksgiving pies, for the continuous flow of customers at their farm produce stand, just north of Route 30.

Along with their pumpkins, customers of the Lehman's burgeoning business select gourds, Indian corn, and tall cornstalks for other seasonal decorations. They may also fill their cars with apples, onions, broccoli, cauliflower, white and sweet potatoes, perhaps even a plant or two.

In fact, this business that began as a small FFA project has long since overflowed to the Lehman's lawn and threatens to burst the sides of the produce sales stand.

Ellsworth and Kathy Lehman, and their children Brian, Barry, Debbie and Bernie, have milked a herd of registered Guernseys here on their Honey Crest farm for nearly 25 years. His maternal grandparents began farming these fields along the present day Route 30 about 70 years ago, and his parents continued that tradition.

Along with dairy and field crops, Lehman's parents raised a full line of fresh produce. Tending market in Columbia, just across the Susquehanna River, kept the family and their six children quite busy.

Several years ago, Brian decided to re-introduce the produce business on the Lehman family farm as an FFA project. Sister Debbie became sort of a "partner," selling Brian's vegetables from a small table on the lawn of her aunt's home, along the main highway north from Wrightsville.

Though painted pumpkins were popular with customers, the Lehman's find they no longer have time to create these favorites. Daughter Debbie did design this lighthearted fellow to smile outside the front door.

With a cheerful and quick smile, Kathy Lehman chats with customers as she bags a produce purchase.

By the following season, the "little girl's stand," as customers affectionately labeled it, had added a second table and tent top. As demand and variety grew, Kathy began spending increasing amounts of time serving customers. Farm wagons of produce were hauled roadside each day, then back the farm lane as dusk fell.

"Eight dollars a day was a big take that first year," chuckles Kathy, a cheerful, outgoing farm woman who enjoys working with the customers.

Like any business, the Lehman's fledgling produce stand had its ups and downs. One "down" proved a painful one for the youngest, Bernie. Then seven years old, Bernie attempting to keep a watermelon from tumbling, fell off the truck one day and broke his arm. Another down came when a severe storm blew branches from the trees outside the Lehman home and onto their crop of garden peas.

Eventually, hauling wagons back and forth simply became too burdensome. Then the present stand was built.

"We thought it was too big, at first," remembers Kathy. "And before long it was too small." Additions of a walk-in cooler and a five-door refrigerator have since enhanced the building's efficiency and convenience.

While the Lehman's sales season wraps up at Thanksgiving, the more recent addition of a 10x50-feet greenhouse means only a short break until tomato seedlings are started in January. With the greenhouse, though, Kathy has been able to reclaim use of her porch, where she formerly housed seedlings started in the basement.

Greenhouse space also allows starting of peppers, broccoli, cauliflower, cantaloupe and seedless watermelon plants. The seedless watermelons have proven a favorite with customers, who willingly pay higher prices for the solid, sweet melon. Seeds are expensive, but not nearly as costly as started plants.

Experimenting this past spring,

Nadine Lehman mans the produce stand daily, adding her own creative handcrafts, including wreath and basket items. Four-year-old Brandy specializes in filling containers with fruit and vegetables.

Picking her favorite from the wagonloads of gourds and pumpkins the family grows is a hard choice for Brandy Lehman.

Pumpkin Season

Kathy sowed red beet seeds in flats of small cells of soil. Customers just cannot seem to get enough red beets, she says. The inside head start, planting one seed per cell, was a real boon to germination and yields. She has had similar success with greenhouse starting of onions in individual cells.

Spring sales open in early April, with bunches of fresh asparagus. Lehman's use the honor system for their asparagus customers, and rarely find that a bunch disappears without the proper payment left behind.

Pumpkin season, however, has brought a few more problems. One morning a few years ago, they woke to find a picking of their nicest pumpkins missing. And just recently, their 175-pound pumpkin - largest at the York Fair this year - which they were displaying at the stand "got away," with only drag marks left behind.

As strawberries ripen, the Lehman stand swings into full gear. Supplemental berries are bought in if their home crop is not sufficient to meet demand. Continuing rains this past season cut heavily into the strawberry yields, as well as that of many other produce crops.

To alert customers to their first strawberry sales many years ago, Kathy ran a three-day ad in the Columbia newspaper. The response surpassed her wildest expectations. Opening at 10 a.m., they were out of berries in three hours.

"We put up a sign that said we'd have more berries the next day - and went home," says Kathy with a grin. "Except for the asparagus ad we use every year, that was the extent of our advertising. Everything has been word of mouth."

Sweet corn is a staple of the stand, with a few late plantings still yielding into mid-October. The perennially-popular Silver Queen is a customer favorite, although Kathy has converted some to a preference for the new "super-sweet" types. These hold their sugar content for several days after picking. A white super-sweet Lehmans tried this year, dubbed "How Sweet It Is," won over some customers after just one meal.

"We guarantee our sweet corn and our melons," Kathy explains of their commitment to quality produce. Such customer satisfaction is what keeps loyal buyers returning, some from fairly distant parts of the county.

Halloween season brings families out together to browse for that just-perfect pumpkin from displays spanning several wagons and the stand.

"That's something families can do together," says Kathy, who enjoys watching children debate the serious business of pumpkin-selection. "If one gets a pumpkin for a dollar, then a brother or sister may figure they can have two fifty-cent pumpkins - just to keep everything equal."

Cost of holiday decorations, such as pumpkins or corn stalks or Indian corn, is something customers rarely question, Kathy notes. But occasionally, she does hear comments on the price of food produce.

"Crafty" items are also popular, like the wooden scarecrows the Lehmans cut out and Kathy paints. Nadine is a talented crafter, and designs decorative wreaths, baskets and "country look" items for the stand.

Often, items they make or arrange specifically to decorate the sales areas catch the attention of customers. Though they offer bulk selection of ears of decorative "Indian" corn, for instance, most buyers will instead select a pre-tied grouping of three of the colorful ears.

In spite of basketfulls of mini-pumpkins through which buyers can sort for size or shape, the first to sell are usually those the Lehman's decoratively display on the spokes of the pumpkin wagon's wheels. And, a wagon rounded full of bright-colored, ornamental gourds sometimes makes selection of just the right ones a lengthy decision for customers.

But it is this customer enthusiasm and loyalty which seem to add to a genuine enjoyment and pride the Lehman's take in their produce business. Some ten acres are cropped to vegetables and the orchard, which includes peaches, apples, nectarines and plums. Although they do hire neighborhood youngsters to assist with picking some crops, the family does most of it themselves. Everyone pitches in to milk and feed in early morning and afternoon, and helps as needed with the vegetables and fruits.

Brian handles more of the dairy and farm work, but his wife, Nadine, is at the produce stand everyday. Their daughter Brandy, 4, enjoys helping fill containers with sturdy produce like apples and onions, but opts for watermelon as her favorite to taste. Her sister, one-year-old Brittany, is still a bit young for a job at the stand.

Barry is employed by the Ford-New Holland Equipment manufacture, and he travels extensively in trouble-shooting and helping develop new farm machinery. Debbie works for Royer's Flower Shop, but helps feed the dairy herd and attend to the produce business. Bernie, 16, is a student at Eastern High School, and assists with whatever needs done - including unloading watermelons.

Two years ago, Ellsworth and Kathy built a new home next to the produce stand, while Brian and Nadine moved into the farmhouse. Their daughters are now the fifth generation of Lehman's here, where Guernsey cows are a tradition and the produce business once again a valued diversification for this family farm.

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

The end of October and leaves everywhere except on the trees. They cover the lawn, the garden and the cars. I'm always glad for a wheelbarrow to cart them off to be dumped.

Lily leaves are still quite green but I know it is time to dig them up and store them until next spring. The dahlia roots take so much space as I put them in baskets in the cellar.

The green beans have reached a point where we are able to eat all that I pick and I no longer freeze them. In fact about the only things that I freeze just now is chard, kale, brussel sprouts and applesauce.

Since I have some extra time, I've been baking several kinds of muffins. Some are heavy and contain lots of oatmeal while others are light like a cake. We eat most of them for breakfast as I think that bought cereal is quite expensive.

Another chore just now is patching overalls and jeans; it is either that or buy new ones. Some pairs have a half-dozen patches but that is better than holes. There are always buttons that need to be replaced too.

Yet while I'm thinking of all of these mundane things, I spy some items on a table nearby and pleasant memories take over. There is a beautiful paperweight from a jewelry store in Lucerne, Switzerland and a tiny plate on a stand from Paris, France. A tiny music box, dated 1874, plays two tunes and was my father's. It was broken when I got it but two of my sons repaired it for me. Then there is the antique lamp that my daughter gave as a gift.

Our minds race from one thought to another as we go about our day's work. But, it is wise to occasionally remind ourselves of the pleasant things in our lives and keep an optimistic outlook.

Joyce Bupp

Rising in the morning to greet pitch blackness outside the windows has never been even close to making my list of ten or twenty favorite things to do.

Getting up early isn't the problem. In fact, it's usually possible to wade through more paperwork in one hour of early morning quiet than in three of "regular" day.

It's that veil of darkness beyond the windows that's the problem. Something about the way my body clock operates may interfere with my eyelids opening properly, unless at least a little light pokes through the windows.

So by this time of the year, the change from Daylight Savings Time to Standard Time is more than welcome. Sure, it means we'll finish supper and head for the eyening chores cloaked in fast-fading light. But prying the eyes open to get an early start on the day comes easier.

Perhaps it's the naturally decreasing period of daylight in the fall that makes the hours of brightness seem more alive and vivid with color than at any other time of the year. Nature seems bound to stockpile an extra boost of beauty against the impending hibernation, the dormacy, the starkness of winter.

Swept clean of summer haze and humidity by the brisk winds of the season, the countryside air is flavored with a crisp, snappy flavor. Rarely is the sky a more intense, clear, deep blue than now. Against it as a backdrop, the old bank barn looks a more vivid red, the maples glow a deeper yellow-gold, and the fields of next year's barley crop show a thick, healthy green growth.

Diminished by earlier brushes with frost are the heat-lovers of the garden - cantaloupe vines and the lush foliage of the choicest tomato plants. But what's left tries harder.

In a neighbor's garden, higher on the hill than ours, pepper plants are rapidly coloring their remaining small fruits a brilliant scarlet, visible even from the highway. And the ends of ears of corn, peeking out from their sheathing of protective husk, dot fields of drying stalks with glints of gold.

Ornamental cabbage plants, shared by a close friend, have spread the umbrella-size on a bank near the patio. Some boast dainty, lacy centers of mottled green and white, while two of a royal purple variety have fattened compact heads at their middles. Those diminutive heads with probably eventually ornament the table, adding their chill-sweetened flavor and gorgeous color to salad or slaw.

Clusters of color accent the perennial border between house and barn, a collection added to regularly, but never likely to be complete. An assortment of hardy chrysanthemums flourishes there, despite adverse conditions that might even wipe out an occasional weed.

Cows tied to the split rail for pre-show cleanups sometimes stomp the clusters. Kittens play hide-n-seek through their stems and the chickens scratch for bugs and dustbaths at their roots. Bedding sawdust coats their leaves as the loader tractor goes past enroute to the barn. Occasionally a bale of hay topples off a wagon and bounces from the blacktop over onto a cluster.

Still, these traditional long-lasting blooms of fall endure, providing much pleasure for few demands. August brings the opening of an early blooming, spoon-petaled yellow, while the durable maroon flowers of another often linger on through Thanksgiving and the first snowfall.

You can almost set - back one hour, please - the clock by the time these last flowers of the year unfold. They usher in a small slot of the year between trick-or-treat and turkey feasts, a time personified by cider and gingersnaps, woodstove smoke and burning leaves.

And, when the maroon mums spread their first blossom to the October sunshine, we know there will be at least one morning on which it will be easier to wake up.

If only there was some simple way to explain it to the cows.

For 20 years Ida Risser has been writing "Ida's Notebook" for Lancaster Farming.

She said when the paper first started publication, it did not include anything for women. She wrote a letter to the editor suggesting they include a woman's column. The paper begin publishing a column written by an extension home economist. But Ida wasn't satisfied.

"You should have something about life on the farm written by a woman," she wrote. To show them what she meant, she included a column.

Impressed, the editor asked if she could write one every week.

Ida recalls, "I was shocked. I never intended to write the column myself."

Ida promised she would do it.

"Are you sure you won't run out of ideas?" the editor questioned.

"Not with six children," she claimed.

And Ida hasn't run out of ideas yet. She said, "It's interesting to see how the paper has changed over the years." The first issue in which Ida's column was included had only two sections with a total of 28 pages.

One of Ida's favorite recipes baked corn. She hopes you'll enjoy it.

BAKED CORN

2 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons flour
1¼ cup milk
1 tablespoons sugar
2 cups corn, cooked
Salt and pepper to taste
2 well-beaten eggs

Melt butter in pan, add flour. Slowly add milk while stirring, bring to a boil. Add corn and sugar. Season with salt and pepper. Add eggs and blend ingredients. Pour into greased casserole. Bake at 350 for 25 to 30 minutes.

ANSWER — Joan Texter, Sinking Springs, wanted a recipe to serve 100 people scrambled eggs baked in roasting pans. Here are two egg casserole recipes from Esther Mae Martin of Womelsdorf and one from Janet Gehman of New Holland. Perhaps the ingredients can be multiplied to serve 100.

Cottage Cheese Egg Casserole

1 cup biscuit mix
1½ cups cottage cheese
½ pound grated cheddar or longhorn cheese
2 teaspoons fresh onion
1 teaspoon parsley
¼ teaspoon salt
6 eggs
1 cup milk
¾ cup butter

Melt butter and put in a 13x19x2-inch pan. Add remaining ingredients. Cover and bake 350 degrees for 40 minutes.

Scrambled Egg Casserole

2 tablespoons butter
2½ tablespoons flour
2 cups milk
½ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
1 cup cheese, shredded
1 cup cubed ham
½ cup green onion, chopped
3 tablespoons melted butter
1 dozen eggs, beaten
1 can sliced mushrooms
¼ cup melted butter
2¼ cups bread crumbs

Melt 2 tablespoons butter, blend in flour, cook 1 minute. Stir in milk until thickened. Add salt, pepper and cheese. Stir until cheese melts. Saute ham and onion in 3 tablespoons butter. Add eggs. Cook until set. Stir in mushrooms and cheese sauce. Pour into large baking dish. Mix remaining butter and bread crumbs for topping. Spread egg mixture. Chill over night. Bake at 350 degrees for 30 minutes.

Sausage And Egg Delight

1 pound sausage, browned and drained
5 eggs
6 slices bread, cubed

½ teaspoon salt
1 cup grated Cheddar cheese

Lightly grease a 9x13-inch pan. Beat eggs; add milk and remaining ingredients. Cover. Let stand overnight in refrigerator. Bake for 1 hour at 325 degrees with foil on the pan. Then uncover and bake for additional 15 minutes. Serves 6 to 8.

ANSWER — For the reader who requested green bean recipes, here are several from Janet Gehman of New Holland.

ANSWER — Jo Evans of Boyds, Md., writes to Melvin Heffner that turnips are quite good if added to potatoes (1 turnip to 3 potatoes), cooked and mashed as for mashed potatoes. Small children will often eat turnips this way if they refuse them otherwise

CORRECTION — The pierogi dough recipe that appeared in this column last week should read that the sour cream, eggs, salt and flour mixture is another version for pierogi dough, not a filling as stated.

CORRECTION — In the 10/14/89 issue, a recipe was printed on the Home On The Range page for potato-bacon soup. Please reduce the 2 teaspoons pepper to ¼ teaspoon.

Zoo Teaches Children About Farming Animals

"Ewes-ful Facts" gave students a chance to learn about the sheep family.

NEW HOLLAND (Lancaster Co.) — Some children never get a chance to pet a cow. They don't know that sheep get hair cuts.

The Grassland FFA chapter from Garden Spot High School want children to learn about farm animals. For two days they held a petting zoo where children could pet animals such as a cow, horse, sheep, pig, kitten, chicks and some other animals.

Thcy children were given coloring books with important agricultural facts. If they read the book, they will find out that a cow family has a father bull, a mother cow and a baby calf. A pig family has a father boar, a mother sow and a baby piglet.

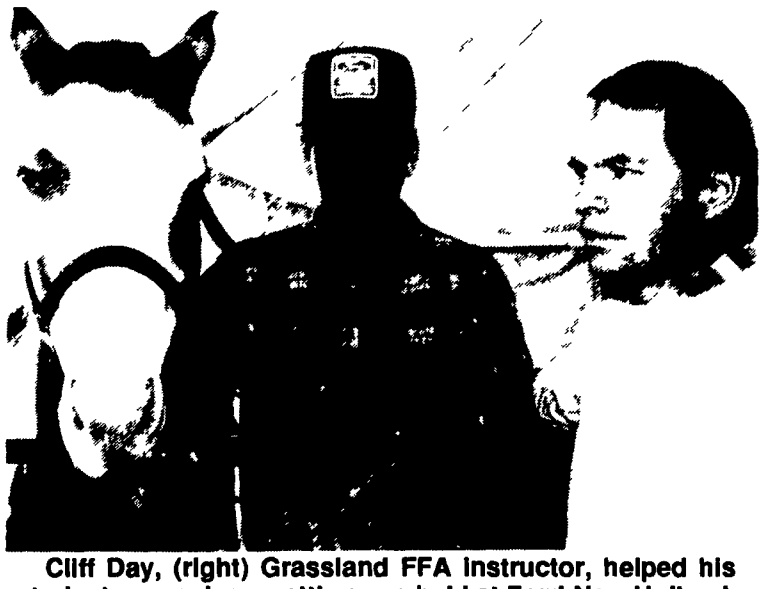
About 1,500 enjoyed the petting zoo. They learned "ewes-ful facts" such as a female sheep is a ewe; a male sheep is a ram; sheep eat grass and corn and drink water; sheep wear wool clothing, a meat sheep weighs 90 pounds.

They also learned that a mother sow usually has 9 piglets born in a litter. Each piglet weighs about four pounds. About six to seven months later, it weights 240 pounds and is ready to go to market.

Maybe you didn't go to the petting zoo, but you can enjoy coloring this picture taken from the coloring book that the FFA'ers distributed.

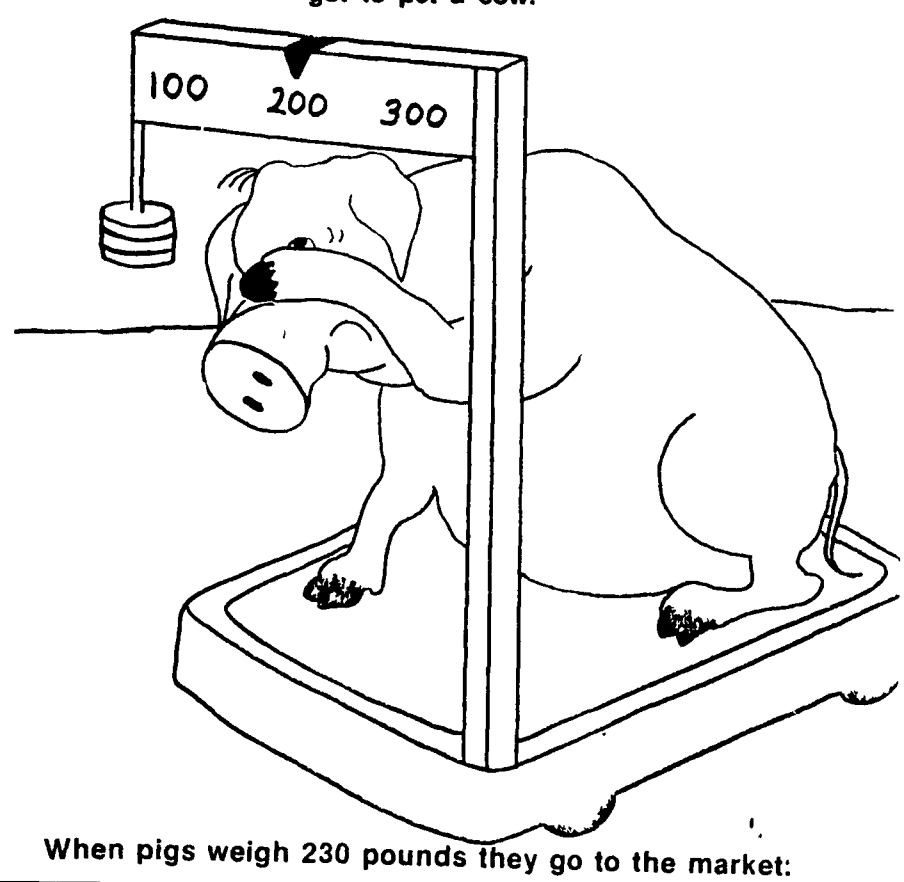
"I can hold this one," a student said about the bunny that came to the petting zoo.

"This chick is fuzzy," said this kindergartener when she held one that a FFA'er from Garden Spot High School handed her.



Cliff Day, (right) Grassland FFA instructor, helped his students organize a petting zoo held at Ford-New Holland. Shawn Eberly (left) brought his horse.

For many children, the petting zoo was the first time they got to pet a cow.



When pigs weigh 230 pounds they go to the market:

New Jersey 25-Mile Trail Ride

Three Camden County 4-H members, Jessica Cipolone, Diana Heim, and Melissa Chorlton, competed in the New Jersey State 4-H trail ride held late September at Atlantic City Park.

The 25-mile competitive ride consisted of several phases of judging. Riders were evaluated on the physical condition of their horses, management of horses and equipment needed for the ride, handling of the horse through various obstacles found on the trail, and completion of the ride within three-and a-half to four hours.

At an awards banquet held earlier this month, Camden County riders received the following honors. Jessica Cipolone, first-place best conditioned horse and fifth best junior rider; Diana Heim, third best intermediate rider and fourth best managed horse; Melissa Chorlton, eighth best junior rider and eighth place best managed horse.

The Camden County team finished as the second-place high point team for the state.

MICROWAVE MINUTES

By JOYCE BATTCHER

Microwaved stuffed green peppers make an ideal entree for autumn meals. Because of quick cooking, the beautiful bell peppers tay vibrant green and fresh-tasting.

Instead of banking for an hour, turning olive green and losing flavor, stuffed peppers microwave in 10 to 12 minutes, keeping their garden-fresh looks and taste.

Some cooks just cut off the top fourth of the pepper and fill the rest with stuffing. I've always liked to cut peppers in half and mound stuffing into each half. I don't know why I do it that way — perhaps because my Mom always did — but I find my method has advantages for microwave cooking. The smaller size means peppers cook faster and more evenly.

Once the peppers are stuffed, arrange them in a ring-shape in the baking dish for the most even cooking. Rotate the dish once during cooking.

Use waxed paper as a cover with hamburger-stuffed peppers. Waxed paper holds in some heat for even cooking, yet allows some moisture to escape for a more baked result. Notice that for Chicken and Rice Stuffed Peppers (below), plastic wrap is the cover. That's because the instant rice must steam in order to tenderize.

If you prefer more tender green peppers in Pizza Meatloaf Stuffed Peppers, precook peppers according to directions following the recipe. Notice the plastic wrap cover for precooking — which holds in heat and steams the peppers. You'll find the peppers in the rice-stuffed recipe are more tender and will not need precooking.

Pizza Meatloaf Stuffed Peppers

3 medium green bell peppers
1 pound lean ground beef
½ cup oatmeal (not instant)
½ cup chopped fresh tomato
¼ cup finely chopped onion
2 tablespoons milk
½ teaspoon Italian seasoning
½ teaspoon chili powder
½ teaspoon salt (optional)
¼ teaspoon garlic powder
Shredded Mozzarella cheese

Cup peppers in half crosswise; remove core and seeds. Place peppers — cut side up — in a circle, with center open, in microwave-safe 8-inch round or square dish. Set aside.

Combine ground beef, oatmeal, tomato, onion, milk, Italian seasoning, chili powder salt and garlic powder. Mix well. Fill pepper shells with meat mixture, mounding mixture on top. Cover with wax paper. Microwave (High) 9 to 12 minutes, rotating dish once. Sprinkle with cheese; cover with plastic wrap. (Cheese won't stick to the plastic wrap.) Let stand 5 minutes. Makes 3 to 6 servings.

Note: Peppers will be tender-crisp. For tender peppers, place peppers, unstuffed, in cooking dish; cover with plastic wrap. Microwave (High) 2 to 3 minutes or until tender-crisp. Add meat mixture and continue as above.

Each serving — 1/6th of recipe: 205 calories, 17g protein, 12g fat, 8g carbohydrate, 73mg sodium, 52mg cholesterol.

Chicken and Rice Stuffed Peppers

2 large green bell peppers
1 can (6¾ oz.) chunk chicken or turkey, undrained
1 package (4.5 oz.) chicken-flavored rice mix*
1 cup hot water
Grated Parmesan cheese
Paprika

Cut peppers in half crosswise; remove core and seeds. Place peppers — cut side up — in a circle, with center open, in microwave-safe 8-inch round or square dish. Set aside.

In a large bowl, using a fork, break undrained chicken into bite-size pieces. Add rice mix (with seasoning packet) and hot water; stir well. Spoon mixture into each pepper half, dividing mixture (solids and liquid) evenly among peppers. Cover with plastic wrap. Microwave (High) 9 to 12 minutes, rotating dish once. Let stand 5 minutes. Sprinkle with Parmesan; then with paprika. Makes 2 to 4 servings.

*Choose a quick-cooking rice mix that makes 4 servings and microwaves in no more than 15 minutes. Use about ¾ of the water called for on package directions and microwave slightly less time than package directs.

Note: Peppers will be fork-tender after cooking.

Each serving — ¼ of recipe: 243 calories, 17g protein, 9g fat, 25g carbohydrate, 843mg (sodium amount depends mostly on rice mix), 34mg cholesterol.

Questions and Answers

Q. Can you tell me how to change larger recipes to two servings?

A. It's easiest to explain using a four-serving recipe as an example. Divide ingredients in half. Use a smaller cooking dish, especially for delicate foods, foods that can't be stirred, and for micro-baking. In a too-large dish, food spreads out and is likely to overcook on corners. Use same power setting and kind of cover as in original recipe.

To figure cooking time, divide the minimum four-serving cooking time in half. Total microwave time is usually half or slightly more than half of the original minimum time. There are exceptions: some foods, like rice or pasta, which need time to tenderize, may take about three-fourths of the original (four-serving) cooking time.

The first time you try a recipe, microwave slightly less than you think you should. Stop to stir, rearrange or rotate slightly more than an original recipe. Be sure to write the cooking time and any special directions by your original recipe.

Q. How do you melt chocolate? I'm not sure what I'm doing wrong, but it doesn't seem to melt right for me.

A. The kind of chocolate can make a difference. I'm assuming you used chocolate chips or candy coating. If either are overheated they become stiff and impossible to work with. Adding a small amount of shortening (not butter, margarine or liquid) and stirring can often restore the chocolate to a workable state.

If you add liquid to chocolate or if the dish for melting or spoon for stirring are moist, the chocolate will harden.

"Real" chocolate chips melt well, but imitation ones don't melt in the microwave. However, you can use part real and part imitation chips or you can melt imitation with other ingredients that melt well alone — such as peanut butter or butter.

Say Nuts To Chestnut Spoilage

Your dream of "chestnuts roasting on an open fire" last year was ruined. The stored chestnuts were covered with mold. All your hard work in planting and harvesting the nuts went down the drain. But spoilage can be avoided if you store chestnuts correctly. I've been receiving many telephone calls on how to store chestnuts, and I understand they are a bumper crop this year. So read carefully if you have chestnuts.

Fresh chestnuts contain 40 to 50 percent carbohydrate, 5 percent oil and about 50 percent moisture. It is the moisture that makes them so perishable. Chestnut spoilage is almost always due to mold. There are four ways to prevent mold from developing. The mold organisms must be destroyed by heat, or the moisture content of the nutmeats must be 10 percent or lower, the relative humidity of the storage area must be 70 percent or lower, or the storage temperature must be 32°F or lower.

To destroy the mold on chestnuts, treat the nuts in a warm water bath (125°F) for one hour. A cooking temperature lower than 125°F will not kill the mold organisms. A higher temperature will damage the nuts. The nuts may then be stored in perforated polyethylene bags for two months at 49°F.

You can prevent spoilage by proper drying, too. To dry the nuts, place them in mesh bags and hold them at 40°F for four days in an area that has well-circulated dry air, or dry them in food dryers for 4-8 hours at 110°F. This reduces the nuts' moisture content to 10 percent; dried nuts can be held for more than a year in a cool, dry area. Nuts dried this way must be moistened by soaking or steaming for about 30 minutes before use.

You can store freshly harvested chestnuts at 34°F without any preparation, too. Chestnuts are at an optimum temperature and moisture content at this temperature. You can freeze only the hot water "blanched" chestnuts and the dried chestnuts. Those that are only stored at 34°F will be injured by freezing.

Keep chestnuts dry on the surface at all times to prevent slime and recontamination with mold. Storage at 40°F or lower is essential in preventing insect infestation.

How To Shell Chestnuts: To shell chestnuts, make two crosscut gashes on their flat side with a sharp pointed knife. The outer shell may come off when you do this, but the inner skin will still protect the kernel. To remove both the inner and outer coverings, place the nuts in a pan over high heat, dropping oil or butter over them — 1 teaspoon to 1 pound of nuts. Shake them until coated, then place in a 350° oven until the shells and inner brown skin can be easily removed. This brown inside skin is bitter and must be peeled off while still warm.

If you have a microwave oven: Cut a slit or "H" on the flat side of the chestnut MAKING SURE IT GOES DEEP ENOUGH TO CUT THE TOUGH BROWN SHELL, and in the method with the microwave, cut into the inner skin also. This prevents steam from building up and exploding the contents of the nut all over the inside of the oven. Make a circle of cut nuts around a paper plate an inch or so from the edge. Cover with another paper plate, inverted, or a paper towel. Microwave on full power for a minute. Test one to see if the shell and inner peel comes off easily with a little prying with a paring knife. If not, microwave another 30 seconds, which should be sufficient unless the nuts are large.

Dice Family Likes Cows But Finds Cars Make More Money

BY LOU ANN GOOD

FREDRICKSBURG (Lebanon Co.) — While farmers diversify to find new ways to make farming a financial success, Harold and Audrey Dice and their six children have found a novel way to improve their cash flow.

They sell cars.

Harold said, "I like cows best, but cars make more money. I sell them so I can farm."

The Dices and their children Joanne, 29; Steven, 24; Diane, 20; Brenda, 18; Eddie, 15; and Andy, 10; agree: Cows are best.

But their affinity for their 120 Jerseys does not keep them from dabbling in a variety of other agricultural interests. The family raises 100,000 ducks, 1,200 hogs, 500 guineas, and 140 heifers of which they sell 40 to 50 registered purebreds each year.

Even for their large family, their operation requires long hours of labor.

The family gets up at 3:30 a.m. and travels to a neighboring farm that they own and where they keep their dairy.

Diane, a past treasurer of the state FFA and who now works fulltime on the farm, admits, "Crawling out of bed at that hour is the low point of the day."

Brenda, the current Lebanon County Dairy Princess alternate and FFA president for Northern Lebanon High School, also works fulltime on the farm. From 4 to 6 a.m. Diane, Brenda and their mother milk the cows. They do not test, but said that their calculations show the herd averages 40 pounds daily per cow.

After milking, Diane feeds 140 young stock while Brenda washes the milking parlor.

While the girls clean up, their mother gets ready to go to Countryside Auto Sales in Manheim with her son Steve who is in partnership with his dad. She works at the car lot three days a week although she'd rather work with the cows. Steve and his dad have been dealing in cars for a long time on the farm and purchased the car lot about two years ago.

After breakfast, the two sisters check the ducks and do the house work. Their dad takes care of the hogs and the field work. "We buy most of the feed so we don't have a lot of field work," he said. They own 60 acres and rent an additional 60 acres.

The family jokingly refers to 15-year-old Eddie as the manager. Because he is still in high school he gets to sleep in, but he does help with the evening milking and takes care of the heifers.

Before the Avian flu spread to the area, the Dices raised chickens. After they needed to erradicate the chickens, they left the chicken house empty for a year until they decided to raise ducks. Both Peking and Muscovy ducklings are purchased from an Ohio hatchery. The Pekings reach seven pounds and the Muscovys must weigh 15 to 18 pounds before being shipped to New York City Chinese restaurants.

The family has encountered few problems with ducks. "They're a lot less work than chickens," Dice remarked.

It takes the whole Dice family to manage their farming operation and auto sales. From left: Andy, Diane, Brenda, Harold, Audrey and Andy.

Automatic feeders and washers are used. When ducks reach market stage, a tractor trailer truck backs up to the chicken house and the ducks are herded up a ramp like cattle. Approximately 2,000 can be loaded within one half hour.

Ducks are resiliant, the Dices believe, and they have had no problem with disease on their farm. The family does need to watch the Pekings closely from two to five weeks as the ducklings have a tendancy to tumble on their backs and can't get off. Two to three times daily, members of the family walk through the duck house to flip up the overturned ducks.

The ducks' beaks are trimmed with scissors within the first two weeks of birth so that they don't peck and kill each other. Brenda said, "We can trim 1,000 in one hour."

The family also raises 1,200 hogs for White Oak Mills.

Eddie summed up the family's opinion when he remarked, "The hogs are the worst part of farming."

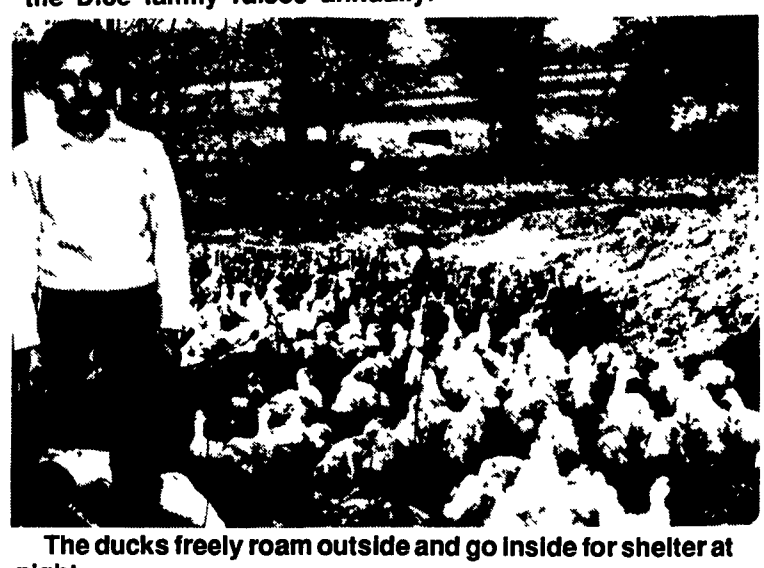
His dad said, "We only raise them because the building is there and paid for so I figure we might as well make use of it."

The Dices diversified operation currently includes 500 guineas, which they will sell in eight weeks to a New York buyer.

"We like to experiment with different things," Dice said. "And guineas are easy for us to try. The guineas and ducks share the same building and have access to going outside at will.

The children enjoy showing cows at fairs and at the Farm Show. Brenda has seven cows; Diane, 9 cows; and Andy, 6 of them.

Ten-year-old Andy plays with one of the 100,000 ducks the Dice family raises annually.



The ducks freely roam outside and go inside for shelter at night.

Harold said, "We don't make money going to shows but a lot of people do things that don't make money if it is fun."

Four years ago, he bought his daughters two Arabian horses—just for fun. They still have the horses although they've only ridden them a few times.

Brenda said, "We keep saying we are going to sell them, but we don't. If you know any one who wants to buy one, contact us."

The sisters also help out in car sales by investing money. Three years ago, Brenda raised 1½ -acres of tomatoes and made $1,200. She invested it in a car that she sold and with the profit continues to buy more. Her original $1,200 investment has now grown to $11,000.

The children tried raising tomatoes a second year but the weather was too dry and they only made enough to cover expenses. This past year, they tried again, but it was too wet and they lost money.

With all their different ventures, the family enjoys cows best.

Dice threatens, "When the kids leave, the cows leave too."

Brenda and Diane have no intentions of leaving the farm. "It's a rewarding experience," Diane said. "I like it except for crawling out of bed at 3:30 in the morning."

Brenda agreed.

According to them, the cows and the kids are going to remain on their Fredericksburg farm for a long time. They're having too much fun to quit even if they need to sell a few more cars to keep farming.

Steven, 24, is in partnership with his dad at Countryside Auto Sales, Manheim.

Marja Tiri (left) enjoys learning about American culture from Faye Kreider, (right) with whom she resides in Fontana and with Faye's two grandchildren, Derek (center) and Danielle.

Through International 4-H Exchange, Friendship And Understanding Is Built

BY LOU ANN GOOD

FONTANA (Lebanon Co.) — When Marja Tira came to the U.S. from Finland five months ago, she found the language hard to understand. "But now, I even think, dream and count in English," she said.

Marja is one of 50 people who came to the U.S. for seven months through the International 4-H Youth Exchange program.

"The United States is so big and people are everywhere. I didn't realize it was so big until I came here," Marja said. Two times the size of Pennsylvania, Finland has 4.9 million people compared to Pennsylvania's approximate 12 million.

After spending three months in Kansas and several months in Pennylvania, Marja claims she has no preference for either state and enjoys everything she sees.

During her seven-month stay, Marja spends two months with a family then moves into another area. Fortunately, she says, she easily adapts to different schedules. Currently she is staying with Homer and Faye Kreider of Fontana in Lebanon County.

Faye has taught Marja counted crosstitch and introduced her to Pennsylvania Dutch cooking, which has been a bitter-sweet experience for Marja.

"I won't touch pickled eggs or baked beans again," she said. "But I think corn on the cob is very good. That was unique for me."

She gets hungry for Finnish meatballs, potatoes and their rye bread, which is crispy like crackers. "White bread is like eating nothing," Marja surmised.

American lifestyles intrigue Marja, and she can't help but compare them with those in her homeland. She said, "Here people drive every where. They can't walk a step. American life is very busy; we live more slowly although I notice people are the same here as in Finland. They have happy days as well as sad days. And they are concerned about what to eat and what to wear."

Finland with its free health care program, Marja believes, takes better care of people. She said, "It sounds horrible that people are sick and can't go the hospital because they can't afford it."

She explained that 35 percent of Finnish' salaries go for taxes and people do complain. The minimum wage is five dollars per hour. Food is more expensive than here although the country produces too much food for its population.

While here, Marja purchased several pairs of $20 jeans, which sell for $70 to $80 in her country.

The variety of food and dress styles are similar.

With 90 percent of Finland's population Lutheran, Marja said, she finds it difficult to understand how people decide which church to attend here. "They seem the same to me."

The Finnish do not dress up for church, and they usually only attend four times a year.

Finnish people are more on the same economical level with few very rich.

Marja said that furniture styles are very different in the U.S. Her homeland uses mostly the Danish style that is more plain and uses lots of wood.

Her Scandinavian country enjoys 70 to 80 degree weather and the midnight sun in the summertime. It becomes very dark during the winter months with temperatures varying from 10 to 20 degrees. "People slow down and sleep more during the winter months," Marja said.

Reindeer farming is a big agricultural industry in Finland. An average herd varies from 100 to 200 head. Most eat reindeer meat only on special days. Jewelry is made from the reindeer horns; skins are used for clothing and to cover chairs.

Ayrshire is the breed found on dairy farms. "Twenty cows is considered a big farm in Finland," Marja said. They have pipe-line milking systems. Farms are generally 40 to 60 acres that are mostly woodland. If there is a money shortage, farmers cut trees and sell them.

"We have a lot of forests," Marja said, "and we use wood for heating and sell paper to other countries." She has heard that the "New York Times" purchases its paper from Finland.

Marja works as a 4-H extension agent. The 4-H program is a vital part of Finland social life. Unlike the U.S. 4-H'ers, Finnish youth can stay in 4-H until 29 years of age. Many, like Marja, participate in exchange programs although only one-third of the applicants are chosen. She has been to Sweden and Germany through the exchange. Participants must pay their own transportation costs but they do not pay to stay with their host families.

Marja hopes to return to the U.S. and visit Florida.

She is proud that her country has a major attraction. She said, "Make sure people know that Santa Claus lives in Finland. He is real. I visited him in his summer cottage in the mountains where he is working."

For a 45-cent air mail letter, you can write a letter to Santa and he will answer you. Address it to Santa Claus, Korvatunturi 99999 Rovaniemi, Finland.

Conodoquinet Sheep

The Conodoguinet Sheep Club held their annual picnic October 1 at the Southmiddleton Park. The hamburgers, hot dogs and hot sausages were provided by the club with each family bringing a hot and a cold dish. Peggy Myers led a guessing game, which everyone enjoyed. The leaders then were given a wool blanket for helping and supporting the kids.

On October 18 the club met for a regular meeting at the home of Megan Souders. Members discussed the success of the roundup and were told to send out thank-you letters to buyers. A committee was formed to plan the next meeting, which will be a community service project. The next meeting will be held November 15 at the Church of God Nursing Home.

Pakistan Group Visits Bedford County Farms

BY LINDA WILLIAMS
Bedford Co. Correspondent

MANNS CHOICE (Bedford Co.) — A Group Study Exchange Program from Pakistan and representing Rotary International toured some Bedford County farms recently.

Five women and their group leader were hosted by the Bedford Rotary Club. Farms were included on their tour because Pakistan's livelihood is 70 percent dependent on agriculture.

"We are impressed with the modern methods of farming here," said Naheed Shah, a career diplomat with the Pakistan Foreign Service, and a member of the group.

"It is much more technical than ours, but then, we expected it would be."

The group visited farms in the Manns Choice area of Bedford County and took an in-depth look at the Fair Farm owned and operated by Ralph Fair and his three sons, Tom, Richard, and John.

The Fairs milk 60 to 70 head of Holstein cattle and farm 640 acres of ground.

"Pakistan farms would have less acreage and all the cows would be milked by hand," explains Shah.

Few of the farmers in Pakistan would have an education. "Landowners, perhaps," says Shah, but definitely not those who do the farming." A farm in Pakistan would have as many as 30 to 35 persons working for a share of the crops.

The land is irrigated by canals. Punjeba has the most extensive irrigation system in the world.

Cotton, rice, leather, and tobacco are exported from the country. "In some years, sugar cane would also be exported," Shah continues.

Farmers raise angora goats and the wool is used for clothing although little wool is needed in this very warm country.

Those on the tour included Sameena Rahman, a journalist with the Pakistan Times; Nighat Gohar, a lawyer and Field Assistant with the United Nations World Food Program at Peshawar; Ghazala Usman, a medical doctor; M. Navaid Kahn, a publisher; and Dr. Sabiha Mirza-Khan, a medical doctor; as well as Shah.

Rahman also visited the farm of Dorothy and Donald Replogle in New Enterprise. The Replogles farm 450 acres of land and milk 120 cows.

Pakistan is spread over an area of 310,403 square miles and has a population of 107 million of which 97 percent are Moslems.

Naheed Shah, Naghat Goati, Ghazala Usman, Geraldine Fair, Sabiha Mirza-Khan, Sameena Rahman, John Remington Fair, (front) and M. Navaid Khan, Russell Fair, John Fair and Kay Fair (back) take time for a picture on the lawn of the Fair Farm near Manns Choice. A group study from Pakistan sponsored by Rotary International participated in the trip.

"I Dare You" Leadership Award Presented

CLEMENTON, NJ — Phaedra Niemczak, a member of the Golden Nuggets 4-H Square Dance Club, has been awarded the national "I Dare You" leadership award in recognition of her personal integrity, balanced living, and motivation for leadership. The honor was presented by Camden County 4-H at their annual 4-H awards night held at the 4-H Center in Blackwood on October 14.

The "I Dare You" award is made available each year by the American Youth Foundation in cooperation with 4-H leaders and county agents across the country. The award was first offered in 1941 by William H. Danforth, founder of the Ralston Purina Company in St. Louis, who dared young people to achieve their highest potential and to influence others through lives of service. The award takes its name from the book, "I Dare You," written by Danforth, in which he commends the balanced life of mental, physical, social and spiritual developments as the back bone of leadership.

Phaedra was recognized for her outstanding contributions to 4-H as a teen leader. In addition to a certificate of recognition, Phaedra received a copy of Danforth's inspirational book, and a scholarship of $250 to attend a two-week national leadership conference sponsored by the American Youth Foundation. More than 8,000 schools and 4-H programs participate in the "I Dare You" leadership award each year.

In 1924 Danforth helped establish the American Youth Foundation, a non-sectarian, not-for-profit organization committed to the service of youth through summer camps and leadership conferences. For more information about the "I Dare You" leadership award and the American Youth Foundation, contact their office at 1315 Ann Ave., St. Louis, MO 63104.

HAPPENINGS

Commodity Marketing Project Expanded

The FFA Foundation recently announced that it is expanding the Simulated Commodity Marketing Activity, which was introduced during the 1988/89 school year. The project, introduced as a pilot in Minnesota, is being expanded to schools in Illinois and Oklahoma.

The purpose of the project is to give students an opportunity to learn more about the actual workings of the commodity markets and how these markets impact their farming operations. Each team of students is given a model farm which has several commodities such as corn, soybeans, wheat, cattle and hogs and for which they are responsible for making marketing decisions. The competition is judged not only on the success of the team's marketing decisions, but also on their overall understanding of the markets and their ability to keep track of relevent market information.

Last year's sponsor of the project was Stewart-Peterson Advisory Group of West Bend, WI. Stewart-Peterson Advisory Group is a firm that specializes in assisting farmers and ranchers across the country with their marketing decisions. In addition to Stewart-Peterson Advisory Group, two additional sponsors have been added by the FFA Foundation for additional support and funding of the expanded project. They are the Chicago Board of Trade and the Chicago Mercantile Exchange. The Chicago Board of Trade has been a sponsor of the FFA for seven years, providing teacher workshops and the Oil Crop Proficiency. Chicago Mercantile Exchange has provided funding for agriculture teacher workshops and FFA collegiate scholarships for the past three years.

Current expectations are that the project will be expanded again next year to include an additional 10 states, not only in the Midwest, but across the country. The FFA recognizes the changing face of agriculture and the continued expansion of the Simulated Commodity Marketing Activity is just one example of the FFA's commitment to meet the challenge of tomorrow's agriculture.

Washington Conference Program

Eric P. Marshall of the Twin Valley FFA Chapter of Birdsboro and Jonathan Grimes and Christopher McGonigal of Hamburg recently attended the 1989 Washington Conference Program in our nation's capital.

The week-long program helps FFA members improve leadership skills, develop an understanding of national heritage, and prepare for more effective leadership roles in their chapters and communities. Sessions on human relations, goal setting, and personal communications develop these skills. Personal outlook, motivation, and pride are also discussed.

Visits to Mount Vernon, the Smithsonian Institution, Arlington National Cemetery, the Jefferson Memorial and other historic sights in Washington were included in the conference.

A highlight of the week was a visit to the office of their congressmen.

Help For The Home Buyer

WEST CHESTER (Chester Co.)— "Steps for Homebuyers, a workshop series on how to buy a house, will be held on November 13, 20 and 27, at the Chester County Cooperative Extension, 235 W. Market Street, West Chester, 7:00-9:00 p.m.

The three-evening series begins Monday, November 13, with "Step One: Finding a House to Fit Your Budget" which includes advantages and disadvantages of homeownership, checking out the local housing market, finding out about financing, and setting realistic expectations.

"Step Two: Sizing up the Structure" will be held Monday, November 20. Topics to be covered include assessing structural quality, checking out the electrical, heating and plumbing systems, and testing for radon.

The series concludes Monday, November 27, with "Step Three: Learning about the Purchase Process." Working with a real estate agent, understanding the paperwork, learning out legal aspects, and homeowner's insurance will be discussed.

Buying a home is a complex process, particularly for first-time home buyers. If you are planning to buy a home, you will want to make your decision carefully so that your choice will give you the most satisfactory housing for your investment.

The deadline for registration is November 6 and there is a $5 registration fee for the course. Persons interested in attending should send a check payable to Chester County Cooperative Extension, 235 W. Market Street, West Chester, PA 19382. For further information, contact the Extension office at 696-3500.

31 Ways To Celebrate Recycling Month

Gov. Robert P. Casey has designated October 1989 as Pennsylvania Recycling Month to build awareness and support for Pennsylvania's landmark recycling law. Listed below are 31 ways that Pennsylvanians can celebrate Recycling Month - one for each day. Here's how you can join the effort:

1. Recycle. If your community is already recycling, join the effort! If not, take recyclables to a "buy-back" center. Call the Pennsylvania Department of Environmental Resources Recycling Hotline at 1-800-346-4242 for information on recycling in your area.

2. Have your name removed from unwanted catalogue or "junk-mail" lists.

3. Ask for paper bags instead of plastic bags at the supermarket. Better yet, bring your own shopping bags.

4. Organize your home. Take unused shoes, clothing, appliances, and books to local charities or a hospital's thrift store.

5. Take your children to a "buy-back" recycling center to help them understand the value of recycling.

6. Write your local elementary and secondary schools to encourage them to teach recycling as part of the Earth Sciences curriculum.

7. Use paper grocery bags to store your recycled newspapers.

8. Make scratch paper out of used office paper.

9. Let your children make personalized greeting cards by cutting apart old ones and pasting them on construction paper.

10. Use cloth diapers instead of disposable ones.

11. Attend a municipal council meeting to speak in support of recycling.

12. Read up on recycling at the public library. Ask the librarian to order books and magazines about recycling.

13. Use scrap paper at home for notes. Your children will love used office paper for artwork.

14. Give your business to automotive service stations that recycle used motor oil, and recycle your used motor oil if you change your own oil.

15. Make a compost pile in your backyard for grass, leaves, and other yard wastes.

16. Wrap presents in newspaper comic pages.

17. Volunteer to help with your community's recycling public education program.

18. Write letters to your state legislators to express support for the statewide recycling program.

19. Store birdseed in clear plastic milk jugs for freshness and ease of pouring.

20. Buy beverages in returnable bottles.

21. Write a letter to the editor of your local newspaper encouraging the business community to support recycling.

22. Reuse empty jars and plastic bottles to store small items such as buttons, nuts, bolts, etc.

23. Make covers for school textbooks with brown paper bags.

24. Use empty plastic tubs (from margarine, cottage cheese, etc.) to store leftovers.

25. Write letters to local newspapers publicly thanking public officials who support recycling.

26. Keep your worms happy; scatter coffee grounds on your garden soil.

27. Buy products packaged in boxes made with recycled paper. Look for the recycling symbol and check your boxes for a gray interior to see if they are recycled cardboard.

28. Make a piggy bank out of a used coffee can.

29. Start seedlings in cut-off milk cartons.

30. Recycle your old automotive battery when buying a new one. Act 101 requires your battery dealer to accept it.

31. Organize a contest for Halloween costumes made from recycled materials.

Adams County Beef Producers Sponsor Calf Sale

ARENDTSVILLE (Adams Co.)— The Adams County Beef Producers Association is having a club calf sale Saturday, November 4, at 7:00 p.m. The sale will be held at the South Mountain Fairgrounds, 2.5 miles north of Arendtsville on Route 234 West.

The club calf sale will feature 25 to 30 calves, this includes 4 registered heifers. All calves sold in the sale will be weaned, wormed, vaccinated, halter broken, and on feed.

The Adams County Beef Producers are adding a bonus to the sale this year. Anyone buying a calf at the club sale and has grand or reserve grand champion at a "terminal" show and sale will receive: $100 savings bond for grand champion and $50 savings bond for reserve champion.

For further information contact: Karol Sherman - 717/259-0006 or Kevin Diehl - 717/642-5077.

Trustees Approve Plans For Ag Arena Addition

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — The Penn State Board of Trustees has approved final plans for an addition to the Agricultural Arena complex.

The new building will be the third phase of the complex and will be located north of the existing livestock holding facilities, which are just east of the Agricultural Arena on the University Park campus.

The structure will be a 33,880 square-foot pole-barn building. It will be used to hold livestock for statewide dairy and livestock shows which can not be accommodated in the present facilities.

The project, designed by the Office of Physical Plant, is estimated at about $300,000.

"The Agricultural Arena complex is used for classes and instructional activities, including the annual Horticulture Show that opens tomorrow, the Dairy Expo, the Little International Livestock Exhibition and other student events," said James Wagner, associate vice president for business and operations.

"Because present livestock holding barns are insufficient to accommodate statewide dairy and livestock shows, there is a need for additional space," he said.

Construction of Phase III of the Agricultural Arena complex is being funded through private donations, raised by the Pennsylvania Holstein Association.

Winning Franklin County Steers Sells For $3 Per Pound

BY BONNIE BRECHBILL
Franklin Co. Correspondent

GREENCASTLE (Franklin Co.) — A 1,355-pound steer owned by Donnie Sheiss of Chambersburg sold for $3 per pound at the Franklin County market sale. Hoss's Steak & Seafood Restaurant of Chambersburg purchased the heavyweight steer, which had earlier in the day been named grand champion of the market steer show.

Lorinda Hawbaker of Mercersburg had the reserve grand champion and second highest-selling animal in the sale. Hoss's Steak & Seafood purchased Hawbaker's 1,370-pound heavyweight steer for $1.45 per pound.

The medium heavyweight champion, a 1,335-pound steer owned by Eric Sheiss, sold to Hagerstown Block Company for $1.35 per pound. Hagerstown Block donated the animal to the Hagerstown Rescue Mission.

David Sheiss's light heavyweight champion, a 1,240-pound animal, sold to McDowell Insurance for $1.32½ per pound.

Snider's Elevator of Lemasters bought Cheryl Hawbaker's 1,115-pound mediumweight champion for $1.30 per pound. The lightweight champion, a 1,035-pound steer owned by Daren Statler of Greencastle, sold to F&M Trust of Chambersburg for $1.30 per pound.

The sale averaged $1.26 per pound on the 22 project steers. The steers weighed a total of 26,130 pounds and sold for a total of $33,152.

Club leader Leon Lebo of Greencastle said he was pleased with the sale, and noted that the steers brought approximately 56 cents per pound over the current market price for steers.

The club expressed appreciation to Jeff Craig, owner of Greencastle Livestock Market, for the use of his facilities for their show and sale. Auctioneer Lyle Reed donated his time to the club.

Gary Dean of Strasburg, Lancaster County, served as judge for the Market Steer show held earlier in the day. Dean is a 4-H Beef Club leader in Lancaster County and is employed by Purina Mills. A graduate of Penn State and a member of the livestock judging team, Dean has a flock of Dorset sheep. He complimented the 4-Hers on their fine group of steers.

Checkoff Program Increasing Beef Demand

ENGLEWOOD, CO — A recent econometric analysis of beef checkoff programs concludes that the checkoff is improving beef prices at all market levels. The study also found that checkoff programs are having a cumulative effect and that demand appears to be stabilizing after a long downtrend.

The study conclusions are the result of a new econometric model developed to analyze beef prices and demand. The study was conducted for the Beef Board by Dr. Ronald W. Ward of the University of Florida Institute of Food and Agricultural Sciences.

The study was funded as part of the beef checkoff producer communcations program. Its purpose is to provide information on the effectiveness of the checkoff to producers who pay into the program.

The study is important for a number of reasons, according to Glen Klippenstein, producer communications committee chairman. "For the first time," Klippenstein said, "we have clear research evidence that the beef checkoff programs are accomplishing the Beef Board's mission -- expanding demand for beef.

"This analysis reinforces previous marketing studies that have shown that checkoff programs are working," Klippenstein added. "But this is the first time we've been able to look at demand as a whole and measure the overall economic impact of the checkoff."

"An important conclusion of this study," Klippenstein said, "is that the demand for beef at different market levels can be accurately estimated and that this information can be used for checkoff program evaluation."

Because many factors affect short-term market prices, the econometric model used in the study accounted for consumer incomes, inflation, population and available quantites of beef, pork and poultry on a quarterly basis. From 1979 to the beginning of the checkoff programs, the model forecast beef prices at the retail, boxed beef and live animal (fed cattle) market levels with 95 percent to 98 percent accuracy.

From 1987 (when checkoff programs began) through the first quarter of 1989, forecast beef prices, using the same model, were significantly below actual prices. This indicates that checkoff programs have boosted beef demand and increased prices over what they would have been.

Beginning with 1987, the study found that beef prices at all three market levels ranged up to 2.8 cents per pound higher than forecast.

The study used economic estimates to illustrate the effects of varying levels of national checkoff program expenditures. At both the live weight and boxed beef levels, the study shows that promotion and information expenditures of $8 million per quarter contribute to a price increase of 1 to 2.8 cents per pound. At an expenditure level of $8 million per quarter, the retail beef price increase ranges from .6 to 2.3 cents per pound.

The study also evaluated quarterly, per capita effects from additional beef supplies and supplies of other meats on beef prices at the retail, boxed beef and live animal market levels.

The study report concludes that, while additional data are needed to test these results, it is clear at this point that the beef checkoff programs have had a measurable impact on the demand for beef since the first quarter of 1987.

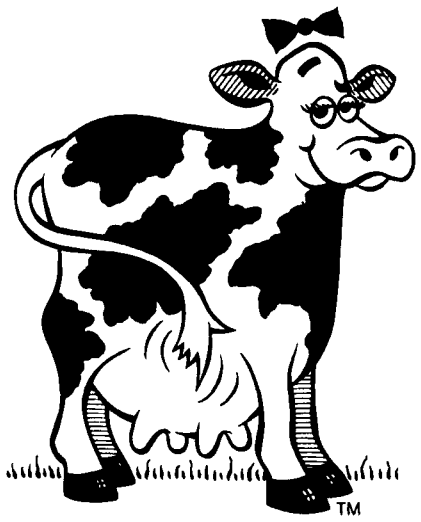
The SURPASS™ Cow.

More cost effective from mouth to milk.



Imagine a cow where feed goes directly from mouth to udder. She'd be a very cost effective animal, but unfortunately, a rather rare breed.

The next best thing would be a feed supplement that helps your cow increase her potential for more milk production.

Improved liquid Surpass™ combines natural, high bypass protein with economical NPN to deliver the right proteins to the right places.

The higher nutrient density of Surpass means you can feed more of your economical home grown grains and forages. Your cows can get more fiber to increase the potential for more butterfat and a higher milk premium.

More milk, more butterfat—and you can get them with a savings in time and effort.

20' Gooseneck Trailer

A versatile, lightweight, Eby aluminum stock trailer is built to provide years of maintenance free service. An Eby trailer is custom built to fit your individual hauling needs - No mass production! We use only quality components and strong alloy aluminum to manufacture what may be the last trailer you'll ever buy.

- LIGHTWEIGHT - Eby stock trailers are 25-35% lighter than comparable steel trailers. Less weight means better fuel mileage or increased payload.
- MAINTENANCE - Eby aluminum trailers won't rust. Welding and painting can cost you dollars in down time and repairs.
- DURABILITY - Eby trailers are built tough. Quality components and 6061 alloy aluminum provide the ruggedness required in a livestock trailer.

Dairy Marketing News

Records Broken

SCRANTON (Lackawanna Co.) — Nearly everyone predicted that milk price records would be broken this fall and winter but no one guessed prices would rise so fast so soon. The Minnesota-Wisconsin Price Series, which had increased 43 cents in July and 61 cents in August, took a gigantic leap of 73 cents in September to break the previous record set in 1984 by 38 cents with a new high of $13.10 for September. That makes a total of $2.12 in increases since March; $1.62 better than last September and $2.75 above the support price. The reasons for the increase are still the same. These include a shrinking milk supply particularly in the upper Midwest; continuing demand for cheese and powder in spite of the higher prices and, equally important, no Commodity Credit Corporation stocks to sell to put a lid on market prices. Of course, you might expect record high prices for dairy products if handlers are paying record-high prices for milk.

Powder Prices

Outstanding here is the powder price that zoomed to an average $1.19 in September. Farmers here don't usually think much about milk powder, and for most of the 40 year life of the dairy price support program, it was such a surplus problem that most of it was given away here or in foreign countries or sold at bargain basement prices for animal feed when it was threatened by spoilage in CCC warehouses. Now it's the sweetheart among dairy products both at home and in international markets. Milk production quotas in European countries helped us here along with a devalued American dollar, and powder prices also hit their record high in September. The average powder price for the last three years was 79 cents and the previous high was 94 cents back November 1983. Powder prices this year were down to their usual 79 cents back in March but by September increased 40 cents to the new record of $1.19 a pound. There's about eight pounds of powder in a 100 pounds of milk so that 40 cent increase was worth $3.20 a hundred. Earlier forecasters were concerned about how long powder prices could keep going up or even maintain the advances already made, but now most of them seem confident that they will continue into the "foreseeable future."

Cheese Prices

Cheese prices also hit record highs in September with 40 pound blocks averaging $1.49 for the month and that tops the previous record of $1.44 back in September 1984 during the Milk Diversion Program. Yearly average prices in the recent past were around $1.23 for cheese, but by March of this year it was down to $1.13 a pound. By September it had increased 56 cents and made the most important contribution to the $2.12 increase in the M-W since March. How much higher cheese prices will go offers more interesting speculation to forecasters than powder because changes depend mainly on what happens in this country since we don't export as much cheese as powder. In addition, wholesale cheese buyers have operated on a cycle of building up inventories when milk prices are lower, well in advance of the end of the year holidays, when retail sales peak. This year milk production started trending down in the spring and still hasn't bottomed out with little or no accumulation of handler inventories.

The price of $1.49 is current at the National Cheese Exchange, which represents mainly contract agreements. However, at "Wisconsin Assembly Points," which is more like a spot market for cheese, prices as high as $1.63 have been quoted for 40 pound blocks. With all this in mind, it would appear that more increases in cheese prices are on the way, but predictions are difficult because market conditions are unique. Best guesses however, are that Exchange prices will go to $1.50 and maybe $1.60 before falling off after the holidays. Last year cheese prices dropped 22 cents from December to March and came to within three cents of the support price.

However, the trend now in cheese prices is up and more increases are almost certain for the next two or three months. after that we enter the twilight zone with no previous market conditions or precedents to help us and that includes the level at which consumer resistance to higher prices begins to cut into the demand. That in turn depends on economic conditions, employment, disposable income, merchandising and all the things that affect consumer decision making.

Record Farm Price

With all the record-breaking prices for milk and dairy products there has to be record-breaking farm prices that percolate down through Federal Milk Marketing Orders to the producer. In the New York New Jersey Milk Marketing Area, the record-high blend price is now $14, which will be paid for September milk. This exceeds the previous record of $13.91 set in November 1984 during the Milk Diversion Program. We also set a record high of $13.16 for Class II milk in Order 2, but the Class I price was "only" $14.31 or 66 cents below the record $14.97 set in January 1985. But don't worry, you'll break that record in November when the Class I price goes to $15.65 or 68 cents over the last record.

So much for records, but that $14.00 blend price was 71 cents better than last month and $1.50 better than last year. Part of that 71 cent increase over last month came from a nine-cent increase in your Louisville Plan pay back from 36 cents in August to 45 cents in September. The remaining 62 cents was right out of the market with a little help on Class I utilization that improved from 42.3 to 45.9 percent. This reflected a 4.5 percent increase in fluid sales because of school openings and a slight drop in milk coming into the pool.

However, there are more increases coming in Order 2 farm prices because of the two-month lag in Class I prices. That's why you know now that the Class I price in November will be $15.65 and, if the M-W price increases continue, even higher in December and January. Guesses on how high the M-W will go have been revised four times in the last six months and the best guess up to now was $13.30, but everyone realizes that's too low and $13.70 is now topping the charts. We'll see, but even without further increases we'll have Class I milk higher than $17 in Pennsylvania when you add the $1.05 relief payment from the Pennsylvania Milk Marketing Board that will continue to May 31. It's nice to have for those who get it, but it may begin to attract consumer attention to prices in Pennsylvania markets as has already happened in New York and Boston.

Pennsylvania Hog, Pig Inventory Shows Increase

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — There were 1,020,000 hogs and pigs on Pennsylvania farms on September 1, up 9 percent from the estimated inventory of 940,000 a year earlier, according to the Pennsylvania Agricultural Statistics Service (PASS).

Market hog inventory at 915,000 head was 9 percent higher, while breeding stock inventory climbed 7 percent to 105,000 head, PASS reported.

The June-August 1989 pig crop totaled 363,000 head, up 8 percent from the same period a year earlier. There were 44,000 sows farrowed during the quarter, an increase of 7 percent. The average litter size was 8.25 pigs per litter, compared with 8.20 for the same quarter of 1988.

Pennsylvania farmers intend to have 45,000 sows farrow during the September-November period, 13 percent above the actual farrowings a year ago. Farrowing intentions for the December-February quarter are projected at 43,000 sows, 13 percent more than the same period this year.

Nationally, the inventory of all hogs and pigs on Sept. 1 is estimated at 58.4 million head, slightly above a year earlier.

Breeding hog inventory, at 7.02 million, is 3 percent below a year ago. Market hog inventory at 51.4 million is 1 percent higher than a year ago.

The U.S. pig crop for June-August totaled 23.8 million head, 1 percent above 1988. A total of 3.04 million sows farrowed during the quarter, 1 percent below a year earlier. Pigs saved per litter was 7.80, compared with 7.62 during the same period of 1988.

The nation's hog producers intend to have 2.90 million sows farrow during the September-November quarter, 1 percent less than actual farrowings a year earlier. Farrowing intentions for the December-February 1990 quarter, at 2.68 million sows, is virtually unchanged from 1989.

Primary data used for the estimates was obtained from a sample of farmers across Pennsylvania and the nation using probability surveys.

District Recommends Slit Tilling Soils

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.)— During the winter months, fields that are lying smooth and barren invite excessive erosion. The Lancaster Conservation District challenges farmers to protect their most valuable resource, soil, by slit-tilling their soils this fall.

Slit-till is a tillage practice that utilizes straight narrow chisel teeth on 30-inch spacings. It leaves approximately two times the residue cover as a typical chisel plow and the same amount of surface roughness. Part of the advantage of the slit-till system is that only two-thirds of the soil is disturbed. The stable soil structure in the undisturbed portion permits greater water infiltration and therefore less runoff. Slit-till systems reduced runoff 40 percent when compared to chisel plow and moldboard plow systems on 1989 test plots in West Lampeter Township.

To encourage use of the slit-till system, the Lancaster Conservation District will offer their slit-tiller to any farmer in Lancaster County free of charge for use on up to five acres. Farmers who like the job that the slit-tiller does can use it for more than five acres by paying a maintenance charge of $2.50 per acre.

To maximize the benefits of the slit-till system, all work should be on the contour. The surface roughness can then act as small terraces, keeping more soil, water, and nutrients on the field where they can be used by the crop. When it is time to plant, the surface should be kept as rough as possible within the limits of the equipment. Disking should be minimized to reduce crusting and increase infiltration.

For more information about the slit-till system, or to use the slit-tiller on a free trial basis, call the Lancaster Conservation District office at 717/299-5361.

Milk Prices To Reach Record Levels In November

LOUISVILLE, KY — Class I milk prices will be noticeably higher to dairy processors and Southeast consumers alike come November, as a result of shrinking supplies, increased demand for the product, and record-high Minnesota-Wisconsin (M-W) Series and Federal Order prices.

Milk prices set two records in September, both of which will impact November Federal Order Class I milk prices.

"The M-W Series price -- the starting point from which the miminum Class I price in federal milk marketing orders are determined -- jumped 73 cents in September to $13.10 per hundredweight of milk," observes Dr. Albert J. Ortego Jr., senior vice president of marketing/planning, for Dairymen, Inc., a regional milk-marketing cooperative. "The September price is a record high for the M-W Series and represents the largest month-to-month increase in the history of the M-W. Thge next highest month-to-month M-W Series price increase on record was the 61 cents per hundredweight increase between July and August of this year."

The M-W price is the average price per hundredweight that Minnesota and Winsconsin dairy processing companies pay for manufacturing-grade milk containing 3.5 percent butterfat. The M-W price has been climbing steadily ever since last March and dairy industry observers, like Ortego, are projecting that it will soar even higher by year-end 1989.

Likewise, the November Class I Federal Order prices, which are based upon the September M-W Series price, will increase by $1.62 cents per hundredweight over year-ago levels -- up $2.12 cents per hundredweight from a low in March 1989 of $10.98 per hundredweight. As a result of these factors, dairy processors will have to pay more for the raw milk they buy.

Dr. Emerson Babb, an agricultural economist with the University of Florida at Gainesville, attributes the sharp increases in the M-W Series and Class I prices to tight milk supplies; the increased demand for milk to manufacture cheese, butter and nonfat dry milk powder; and the depleted federal government inventories of dairy commodities.

"Tight milk supplies and the increased demand for milk for manufacturing purposes -- particularly in Minnesota and Wisconsin -- have resulted in tremendous bidding among dairy processors for a rather limited supply of available milk," Babb observes. "In addition, the federal government's stocks of butter, powder and cheese have become extremely low. All of these factors in the market are being reflected in sharp increases in fluid milk prices."

Babb says that Southeast milk supplies will continue to remain tight through the end of the year and perhaps well into 1990, thereby keeping milk prices elevated.

In addition to tight milk supplies, the growing demand for raw milk, and the sharp increases in the M-W Series and Class I Federal Order prices, several other factors have driven milk prices up over the past two months. They are: hot, humid weather experienced during the summer months which has curtailed Southeast milk production; the reopening of schools which increases the demand for milk; and the exodus of farmers from the dairy business due to the low prices they have received for their milk for several years.

Dairymen Inc., is a farmer-owned, milk-marketing cooperative serving its 5,200 member dairy farmers who are located in 17 Southeast, Mid-Atlantic and Midwest states. The cooperative is headquartered in Louisville, Ky.

Winter Cover Crops Can Prevent Nitrogen Pollution

ANNAPOLIS, MD — The Maryland Department of Agriculture, the University of Maryland Cooperative Extension Service, and the Agriculture Experiment Station are studying the growth of cereal grains in the winter to prevent excess nutrients from getting into groundwater supplies and eventually the Chesapeake Bay.

For example, at the Wye Research and Education Center on the Eastern Shore rye has been grown during the winter in corn fields to prevent nitrogen contamination of groundwater. Rye is an excellent winter cover crop because it grows well in cool weather.

"This research on planting cereal grains cover crops in the winter to prevent nutrient run off is another example of what the farmer is doing to protect our environment and restore the Chesapeake Bay," said Maryland Secretary of Agriculture Wayne A. Cawley Jr.

"I am very excited about the effectiveness of planting winter cover crops to control nutrients and prevent soil erosion," Cawley added.

Anyone interested in learning more about nutrient management for farmers is invited to attend a field day, Tuesday, October 24, at Indiantown Demonstration Farm in Queen Anne's County. The focus of the day's activities will be on what the farmer is doing for the Chesapeake Bay cleanup effort. There will be a presentation on using cover crops as a nitrogen management tool.

A CUT ABOVE THE REST

With almost double the number of cuts per minute over most of our two bladed competitors and the extra suction created by Vicon's unique triangular discs it's easy to understand the no-plug non stop performance of Vicon's three bladed KM disc mower conditioners

Heavy duty discs and reversible blades, and two piece cutter bar skids give you reliability and economy as standard equipment

Superior conditioning is achieved by intermeshing rollers which the crop passes through, crimping each stalk at regular intervals along its length, to accelerate moisture loss in the evenly formed swaths

The unique design of the Vicon full swivel hitch now makes it possible to keep the PTO linkage in perfect alignment at any angle of turn In-field productivity is greatly increased and wear, vibration and power requirements are reduced.

RISING FEED COSTS?

VAN DALE Has The Answer!

the Orbit Mixer

Thousands of dairy farmers just like you have changed to a total mixed ration program for their dairy herds—and they're glad they did. By working with a qualified nutritionist to determine the most economical ration for their herds and by using a VAN DALE Orbit Mixer designed to blend the exact ration every time, these dairy farmers are reporting significant profit improvements through lower feed costs and/or higher milk production.

Typical Savings for 60 Cow Herd

Feed Cost —
20 cents per cow per day
60 cows x 365 x .20 = $4,380

Milk Production —
4 lbs extra per cow per day
60 cows x 500 x 4# x .10 = $7,200

ALTERING THE NURSING PATTERN

People have spent a lot of time looking at the mechanics of lactation. All the effort is based on the notion that pork producers would like to wean healthier and heavier pigs, while getting sows into heat sooner. Of course the studies, thoughts and observations take on all shapes and sizes. But there is one question that floats to the surface in most cases—what can we change in the normal nursing pattern to improve productivity?

One of the proven procedures on this list that nearly every pork producer uses is cross fostering.

And a similar practice utilized by some of the larger units is that of over-farrowing and litter equalization. In this case, more sows are farrowed than there are crates available. Some sows are weaned just a few days after farrowing, while litter size in the remaining sows is equalized at 12 or so pigs.

But a few other techniques have been beat around by researchers for the last 10 years or so, and for the most part are not commonly practiced by producers:

1. Split nursing: Pigs are separated from the sow at farrowing time until all pigs are born. Pigs are then sorted and marked into two equal groups—large and small birth weight. The small pigs get first crack at the udder for about a half-hour after which the remaining pigs are put on the sow (along with the small pigs).

2. Limited nursing: In the last week of lactation, pigs are given only limited access to the sow. For example, the litter may be allowed to nurse the sow four times a day during the last seven days of lactation.

3. Split weaning: About one week before the normal weaning day, the largest pigs are weaned. The smaller pigs, therefore, have seven days of sow's milk without competition from their larger litter mates.

Let's take a look at each of these techniques—why they're done, whether they'll do any good.

Split nursing

By allowing the small pigs first access to the udder, they also have a guaranteed shot at the colostrum. This practice has not been researched too heavily. But John Gadd in a past column of the "National Hog Farmer" reported the results of one trial. Sows with split-nursed litters weaned .3 more pigs than those in the control group. That translated into a five-pound increase in litter weight.

The problem with the split nursing routine is that you must be there at farrowing time. With prostaglandins (Lutalyse) daylight farrowing is possible, but it requires accurate breeding dates.

Is this one worth the trouble? If you're going to be there anyway, putting all the pigs in a warm area until the end of farrowing is not such a bad idea. And the reasons for giving the smallest pigs first access to the udder makes sense.

Limited nursing

The real incentive for this technique is to get the sow into heat sooner. By reducing the amount of time pigs spend on the udder during the last week of lactation, her reproductive system will be stimulated earlier than normal. There isn't much question that it works.

In a study at the University of Illinois reported in 1981, pigs were given access to the sow only three or four times during the last week of lactation. And researchers demonstrated that limited nursing could bring the sows into heat

Pennsylvania Girl Wins American Angus Association Scholarship

ST. JOSEPH, MO — Lori Cash of Centre Hall received a $1,200 scholarship from the American Angus Auxiliary for being the nation's top female Junior Angus Association member. A scholarship was awarded the top five boys and girls with a total of $7,200 being presented.

A record number of youth, 33 from 20 states, applied for the scholarship money, reported Mrs. Ardyce O'Neill of Logan, Iowa, the scholarship chairperson. The first-place boy and girl received $1,200; $900 was presented to the second-place girl and boy; the third-place finishers received $700; the fourth-place finalists were awarded $500; and $300 went to the fifth-place boy and girl.

In addition to scholarships, the five female finalists are eligible to compete for the Miss American Angus title for 1990 at the American Angus Association annual meeting held in November at the North American International Livestock Exposition in Louisville, Ky.

The other female recipients were Jean Macauley, Oregon, Ill., second place; Suzannah Rowland, Gamaliel, Ky., third place; Lori Franklin, Snohomish, Wash, fourth place; and Dee Dee Lawson, Cushing, Okla., fifth place. The young men receiving scholarships are Jason Carrico, Redfield, Iowa, first place; Wade Baxter, Osawatomie, Kans., second place; Matthew Titus, Oronoco, Minn., third place; Mark Brandenberger, Clifton, Texas, fourth place; Tracy Piepho, Howell, Mich., fifth place.

Lori Cash

A member of the American Angus Association and the Pennsylvania Junior Angus Association, Cash is the 18-year-old daughter of Erskine and Willie Cash. She has been involved with her state junior Angus group for nine years and has held several offices. Cash served as show manager for the 1989 Eastern Regional Junior Angus Show, which was hosted by the Pennsylvania Junior Angus Association.

At the 1989 National Junior Angus shomanship contest, Cash won the coveted top showman title. In addition, she has received several achievement awards including outstanding Pennsylvania Junior Angus girl. Her family was named the Pennsylvania Angus family of the year. Recently, Cash was elected to the National Junior Angus Association Board of Directors.

Cash is pursuing a career in communications at Penn State. She plans on staying involved with Angus and promoting youth programs , as they have been an important part of her life.

Fish Producing Conference Scheduled

READING (Berks Co.)— Penn State Cooperative Extension announces its first conference for those interested in raising fish commercially, either indoors in tanks or outside in ponds and raceways. The conference is set for Wednesday, November 15, from 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. at the Berks Ag Center.

The conference includes speakers from USDA, area fish farms, the University of Maryland, state agencies, the new state aquaculture association, and a major supermarket chain. The conference cost is $15, which includes a lunch buffet of fish from area farms, the trade shows of suppliers, handouts, and an optional tour of a fish operation at the end of the conference.

"We've found the experts and producers who know the area and climate, and who can give interested growers the basics of how to make a profit raising freshwater fish," said Jeff Patton, Extension agent-marketing and a conference organizer. "Our goal is to help producers make sound, informed decisions on whether to and how to start up in this farm enterprise."

Although Pennsylvania doesn't enjoy the climate that has fostered the catfish industry of southern states, there are other species and methods that show promise in the mid-Atlantic region. This is significant because area consumers have increased fish consumption at a steady pace, and fish imports represent the U.S.'s third largest trade deficit category.

Contact the Cambria County Extension, 814/472-7986 extension 392, office for the registration brochure or call Jeff Patton, Extension agent in Lehigh County for more information. His number is 215/820-3085.

Lehigh County Extension Office Moved

Lehigh County's Penn State Cooperative Extension office has moved to a new location. The office is in the newly built Lehigh County Agricultural Center at 4184 Dorney Park Rd. in South Whitehall Township.

Also housed in the Ag Center will be the Lehigh County Soil Conservation Service, Lehigh County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, Farmers Home Administration, and Lehigh County Conservation District.

The Extension office phone number is 215/391-9840.

A STRONG CASE AGAINST BOBCAT.

When you think skid steer loaders, you probably think Bobcat.

But let's push them aside for a moment.

And discuss Case Uni-Loader® skid steers. Which just happen to outdo the competition in areas like power, performance and productivity.

Compare, for instance, the new Case 1840 to its counterpart, the Bobcat 743.

The 1840 turns out 50 net horsepower to the Bobcat's 36. 1350 pounds of lift capacity to their 1300. And the Case engine displaces 239 cubic inches to their 106. Simply stated, the Case 1840 is the most powerful unit in its class.

Now, put the Case 1845C up against the comparable Bobcat 843. Our 56 net horsepower to their 54. And our 239 cubic inches of engine displacement to their 169. Which also makes the 1845C the most powerful unit in its class.

All this, when added to simple, construction-type hand controls, heavy-duty mainframes and a long list of versatile attachments, makes a compelling case for Case Uni-Loader skid steers.

So contact your nearest Case Dealer to see the powerful Uni-Loader family in action.

After all, you just might discover that Bobcat is no longer in the picture.

sooner. In their seven trials, 20 percent of the sows were in heat before weaning compared to none in the control group. The average interval from weaning to breeding was reduced by about 2.5 days. The effect on the pigs was not dramatic but in the limited nursed group, weight gain was somewhat lower and creep feed intake was higher.

Most other studies show similar results, with some researchers even making successful matings while sows are still nursing. But the practicality of this routine is really open to question. First, it will require a lot of labor to lock the pigs up several times a day every day for the last week of lactation. Second, getting the sow bred a few days sooner will save only a dollar or two in total feed costs per litter—$.20 per pig at the most. And finally, having a sow in heat in the farrowing house is more of problem than a benefit—since you'll have to handle her differently than the others who would be weaned and bred a few days later in the breeding barn.

Split weaning

One of the suggested benefits of this technique is to provide a boost to small pigs near the end of lactation. By weaning the larger pigs first, their smaller litter mates get the benefits of an extra week of sow's milk minus the competition from the larger pigs. And like limited nursing, the researchers argue that the sows can be bred back sooner.

Among the first institutions to explore this technique was North Carolina State University in 1981. Five days before weaning, litter size was adjusted in the experimental sows. They were left with small (3 pigs), average (8 pigs), or large (13 pigs) litters. Sows nursing small litters came into heat about three days sooner than the other two groups. Pig performance before and after weaning was nearly identical for all three groups.

A study three years later at Kansas State University reported similar results.

But the findings of a trial completed last year at the University of Saskatchewan did not completely agree with the previous reports. In the Canadian trial, large pigs were weaned at 21 days, the smaller pigs at 28 days. The only effect on the sow was her weight change during the last week of lactation. The split-nursed sows actually gained weight, 1.5 pounds, between between week three and four, compared to a 14-pound weight loss in the control group.

Pigs in the Canadian study from the split-nursed groups did not seem to fair any better than their contemporaries on the control sows. For example, the large pigs taken from the sow at day 21 did not grow any faster than similar pigs left on the sow. And the small pigs, which should have shown the best response, also could not outperform the small pigs in the control group. So the split-weaning technique is not much to get excited about.

SUMMARY

1. Split nursing—giving small pigs the first shot at the udder right after farrowing may boost survival rates in the litter. The trade-off is that someone must be there at parturition. With the approval of Lutalyse, that's no longer impractical. So for some producers this may be worth the effort.

2. Limited nursing—allowing pigs access to the udder only three to four times a day during the last week of lactation. Pulling this one off is no small task. The juice is hardly worth the squeezing, since the only thing you get for your efforts is a sow in heat a day or two sooner than normal.

3. Split weaning—weaning the largest pigs about a week before the remaining litter mates. Based on present experiments, this is another routine that's not worth the trouble. The sows may cycle a few days sooner, but the pigs fair no better—whether weaned early or left on the sow.

1.56 Million Pounds Pennsylvania Trout Sold

The state's 39 commercial trout growers sold 1.56 million pounds of trout valued at $4.33 million during the 12-month period ending August 31, according to the Pennsylvania Agricultural Statistics Service.

Sales by the state's growers of food-sized trout, usually 12 inches or longer, totaled 1.04 million pounds of 67 percent of total production sold during the period, PASS reported. At an average of $2.64 per pound, the food-sized trout were valued at $2.74 million.

Sixty-three percent of the food-sized production was sold to fee and recreational fishing establishments, while processors and restaurants accounted for 19 percent and 11 percent of production, respectively.

Pennsylvania growers' sales of stocker trout, usually six to 12 inches long, totaled 1.13 million fish, or 514,000 pounds liveweight, during the period. At an average of $2.94 per pound, stocker sales were valued at $1.51 million, with 80 percent of the volume sold to fee and recreational establishments.

The report noted that although 39 commercial gorwers are located throughout the Commonwealth, most are situated in eastern and southeastern counties.

A recent study of the egg industry shows a big difference in profit earnings among producers, a fact that reflects the industry's competitiveness. The study reports that the top third of the U.S. producers have averaged close to a 20 percent return on investment for the past 10 years, the middle third about 10 percent, and the bottom third broke even. For calendar year 1988 this represented a difference of 7.87 cents per dozen between the top third and the bottom third.

What causes this difference between poultry producers? Whether you are an egg producer, turkey or broiler grower, an independent or contract producer, the same principles apply. These are pay attention to details, anticipate and correct problems immediately, practice good poultry husbandry.

Some key items to consider if you want to be a member of the top third:

•Maintain Excellent Air Quality. Make sure your ventilation system is operating properly. Keep inlets, fans and shutters clean and in good operating condition. Your ventilation system should maintain a constant temperature, remove excess moisture and gases and supply fresh air.

•Control Rodents. Rats and mice increase your costs with lost feed, damaged facilities and increased risk of disease. Control rodents by inspecting and assessing current infestation; cleaning up and closing up access areas to your poultry house; placing rodenticide in strategic locations; monitoring bait acceptance and movement; and evaluating the control program.

•Monitor Feed Use. Feed represents the largest expense in producing poultry. Keep feeding equipment in good repair to prevent unnecessary waste from spillage.

•Maintain A Clean Operation. By keeping your operation clean you reduce losses to diseases, accidents, broken equipment, and pests. A clean operation also helps to project a positive image to the public for your product and farm.

•Monitor Poultry Health. Make sure vaccinations are properly administered and given on time. Evaluate the effectiveness of your poultry health program through blood tests. Maintain a strict biosecurity program to minimize disease exposure to your flock.

•Manage Expenses. Even a contract producer has costs that can be controlled. Repairs on equipment, electricity, interest payments, equipment purchases, and dead bird disposal are a few expenses every poultry farm has control over.

These are just a few of the detail areas a poultry producer must concentrate on if the title of "The Best Poultry Producer" is to be earned and maximum profits achieved.

TIPS ON BUYING SEED CORN

Here's what one farm editor says —

"Buy '90 inputs in '89? Looks like it might be a good move, especially if you can get early bird discounts. But price breaks must be 8% to 10% to come close to matching alternative places for stashing extra cash."

"Corn, soybean and wheat growers probably will open throttle a big further next year by planting more acres. Same holds for alfalfa growers."

" Buying ahead is one way to ensure that you get the seed you want in a first come - first served market. Legumes may be in tightest supply."

John Vogel in Money Trends.

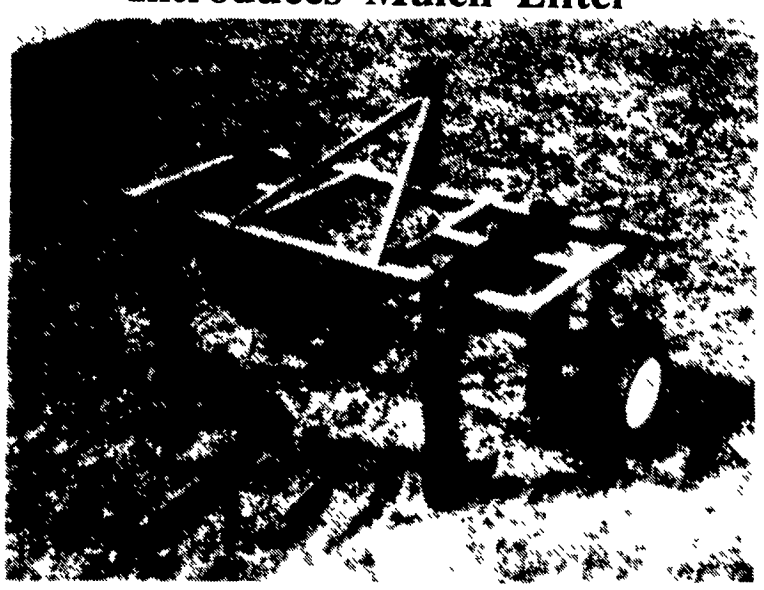
Zimmerman Irrigation Introduces Mulch Lifter



A new plastic-mulch lifter is available this fall from Zimmerman Irrigation Co. of Mifflinburg. The lifter quickly and easily removes plastic mulch, usually a back-breaking task. The mulch is lifted and laid on top of the ground for easy pick-up. The lifter is fully adjustable to accommodate plastic mulches three to five feet wide. It also loosens drip tape in the same operation.

Designed with heavy tubular steel frame, the lifter has wear-resistant shear blades, spring-loaded coulterdisks, and heavy-duty adjustable-depth wheels. It can be pulled by any three-plow size or larger tractor with a 3-point hitch. For more information, contanct Zimmerman Irrigation Co., RD 3, Box 186, Mifflinburg, PA 17844; 717/966-9700 or Conestoga Irrigation, RD 3, BOX 52A, Ephrata, PA 17522; 215/445-4144.

Beachley-Hardy Offers New Alfalfa Variety

CAMP HILL (Cumberland Co.) — Beachley-Hardy Seed Company, exclusive distributors of W-L Alfalfas in the Northeast, has added the newest variety, WL 317, to their alfalfa inventory, according to Frank Welch, marketing director. He said that the fall-dormant variety will be available for spring planting.

WL 317 has been specifically developed for hay and haylage in this growing region, and it displays outstanding persistence in long rotations due to its excellent winterhardiness and resistances to all major disease, insect and nematode pests that attack alfalfa. It is a leafy, fine-stemmed variety with rapid regrowth after cutting and high forage yield. The result of several years of research, WL 317 has been thoroughly tested and monitored during each stage of development, production, handling and storage. As with all W-L varieties, this new variety was produced and conditioned to achieve a low hard seed content without scarification, and is certified by the National Certified Alfalfa Variety Review Board. All W-L alfalfa seed is 99.9 percent pure, exceeding the industry average.

Penn Jersey Celebrates 25 Years As Harvestor Dealer

NEW HOLLAND (Lancaster Co.)— This year Penn Jersey Products, Inc., celebrates its 25th anniversary as the area's authorized Harvestore systems dealer.

This year also marks the 40th anniversary of the introduction of the Harvestore® system. To mark the occasion, A.O. Smith Harvestore Products, Inc. hosted a gala "birthday party" at its DeKalb headquarters earlier this year.

The event, attracted Harvestore system owners, independent dealers, civic leaders, and members of the press. Tours of the company's manufacturing facility, demonstrations of current products, and an informal luncheon took place. The event concluded with the ceremonial cutting of a 40th anniversary cake.

The first 80 Harvestore structures, measuring 14 and 17 feet in diameter and 40 feet high, were sold in 1949. Today, more than 75,000 structures have been installed across the United States and Canada, and the Harvestore system plays a major role in efficient livestock production. The structures are used to preserve and store a wide variety of feeds, including medium-moisture forages such as haylage and cornlage and fermented high-moisture grains.

The original structures of 1949 are dwarfed by today's largest units, which range in size up to a nomimal 31 feet in diameter by 89 feet tall. The feed storage structures also have been joined by a full line of manure handling equipment that includes batch mixers, conveyors, grain processors, slurry pumps, and the Slurrystone system family of liquid manure tanks. Glass-fused-to-steel structures also are produced for municipal and industrial applications such as holding drinking or waste water.

DeLaval Presents Glass Weigh Jar-Conversion System

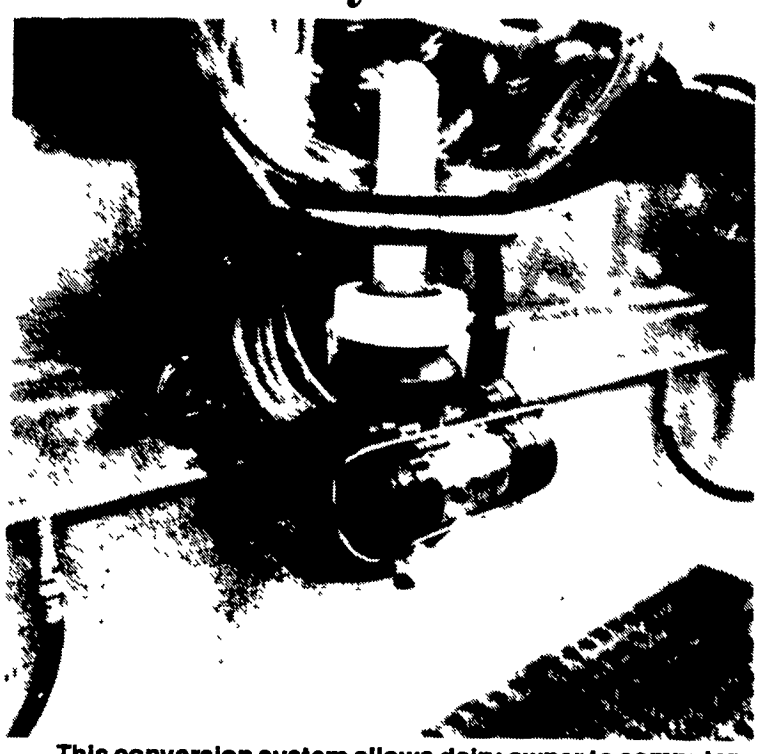
KANSAS CITY, MO — Alfa-Laval Agri, Inc., now offers a second electronic milk-yield recording option that gives dairy operators the opportunity to convert their glass weigh jar systems to an in-line digital milk-yield recording system. It also can interface with the company's computerized herd management and milk yield recording equipment.

The conversion system, called the Jar-Master™ Meter, allows dairy owners to computerize their dairy operations without sacrificing their previous investment in weigh jars.

Jar-Master is a DHIA-approved milk weighing device. The system combines the advantages of weigh jars -- superior vacuum stability, visual inspection of milk and easy capture of milk from treated cows -- with the accuracy and efficiency of digital metering.

The Jar-Master stall unit controls an outlet meter that attaches easily to 65- or 85-pound weigh jars. The stall unit also controls milking, cleaning, dumping, mixing or sampling operations.

When the milk unit is removed at the end of milking, the operator flips a switch on the control box beside the jar and the meter measures the milk as it passes to either a high-line or low-line pipeline. Each cow's milk yield is displayed on the Jar-Master stall unit in pounds or kilograms accurate up to one decimal point.



This conversion system allows dairy owner to computerize their dairy operations without sacrificing their previous investment in weigh jars.

Jar-Master is specially designed to interface with DeLaval's ParlorMaster™ controller to obtain automatic identification of each cow and recording of milk yield. It easily connects with the Herd-Master® management system to complete the link between milk yield recording and feeding for maximum efficiency.

The Jar-Master is easy to install and fully CIP cleanable, and requires only regularly scheduled maintenance.

Alfa-Laval is the world's largest dairy supplier, with a nationwide network of more than 300 certified DeLaval dealers.

Deere, American Cyanamid Announce Closed Chemical-Handling System

MOLINE, IL. — A "closed" granular-chemical handling system to minimize the exposure of agricultural workers to pesticides has been developed and tested in a joint effort by John Deere and American Cyanamid Company. The system will be initially marketed for use with John Deere MaxEmerge and MaxEmerge 2 planters and American Cyanamid COUNTER® systemic insecticide-nematicide.

Deere & Company and American Cyanamid representatives presented the results of extensive field evaluations, which were conducted last spring, to researchers at a symposium sponsored by American Cyanamid held October 1-4 in New Orleans.

Development of the closed handling system is, in part, a response to a growing concern in several states regarding the burning of empty pesticide containers, and other related environmental issues.

The planter's hopper lid and the insecticide package are designed so that the operator will normally not touch or inhale the pesticide during transfer into the planter for field application. Since there are no open bags with the system, there is minimal danger of pesticide dust blowing onto equipment or field personnel.

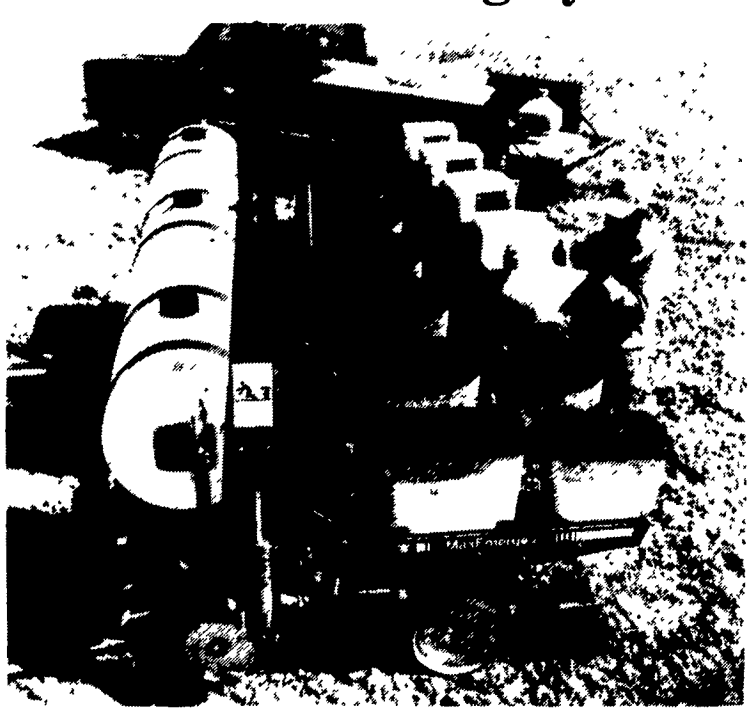
The new system's design has a dispensing valve on a returnable pesticide package and a receiving valve on the planter's hopper lid. When the two valves are coupled, they open automatically to provide a path through which the pesticide can flow from the package to the planter's hopper. When the valves are uncoupled, they close automatically.

The new valve mechanism (patent applied for) minimizes the risk of accidental exposure of the material being transferred. Empty containers are returned to the manufacturer for refilling.

Deere & Company and American Cyanamid have worked together for nearly three years to develop agricultural chemical application and transfer equipment suitable for manufacture by Deere and for use with pesticides manufactured by American Cyanamid.

COUNTER systemic insecticide-nematicide will be packaged for the new system and marketed in selected areas of the Corn Belt in 1990. Marketing locations will be announced at a later date.

MILK AMERICA'S HEALTH KICK



A "closed" granular chemical-handling system has been developed in a joint effort by John Deere and American Cyanamid. The planter's chemical hopper lid and the chemical's package are designed to minimize the exposure of farmers to chemicals during the transfer of the chemical into the planter.

England Is PRV Free

With no more cases since two small outbreaks in April, the Ministry of Agriculture has declared England free of the disease. One of the two last index cases was found through an intensive sow/boar slaughter surveillance program; the other was in a small, purebred herd, which had never been tested.

The English eradication program began in 1983. In a seven-month period, all herds known to be infected were depopulated to slaughter. Since that initial program, case finding has been by slaughter surveillance and infected herds have been cleaned up by slaughtering positive aninmals. Costs of the eradication program far exceeded estimates as a result of lower-than-expected slaughter prices for small pigs from infected herds and compensation paid for down-tie in depopulated herds. The costs were paid by a checkoff on hogs marketed.

Gratz Fair Sells Youth Livestock Champions

GRATZ (Dauphin Co.) — Forty-five project animals raised by area youth were auctioned at the Gratz Fair's Second Annual 4-H and FFA Livestock Sale last month.

Among those animals were the grand and reserve champion lambs and hogs and the grand champion steer. The youth are the benefactors of the sales.

There were 47 individuals or businesses registered as buyers at this year's sale.

In the market lamb sale, the 100-pound grand champion was raised by Garth Sweigard of Halifax and bought by Rudy and Gina's Meat Market (formerly Lesher's Meat Market) of Elizabethville for $3.30 per pound. The 115-pound reserve champion, raised by Todd Lebo of Millersburg, was purchased by Agway of Elizabethville for $1.60 per pound.

In the market hog sale, the 260-pound grand champion, raised by Jeffrey Lebo of Millersburg, was bought by Hatfield Packing Co. for $2.16 per pound. The 250-pound reserve champion, raised by Jim Long of Halifax, was purchased by Keystone Farm Credit of Hegins for $2.20 per pound.

This was the first year a steer was auctioned at the Gratz Fair sale, the 1,160-pound animal being sold by Todd Lebo. The steer was purchased by Peter's Bros. Meat Market of Lenhartsville for $.75 per pound.

George and Mike Deibert, auctioneers, from Klingerstown, volunteered their expertise again this year. Also assisting were Fred Rudy, from the Dauphin County 4-H office, and Janet Allis, from the Northumberland County 4-H office.

The Gratz Fair Association extends a thank you to the individuals and businesses who participated in this year's sale and supported the efforts of the local youth.

The grand champion hog, showed by Jeffrey Lebo, left, went to top bidder Lynn Schwalm, center, of Hatfield Packing and Michael Schwalm.

Todd Lebo, right, sold his reserve grand champion lamb to Steve Lengel of Agway in Elizabethville.

PFU To Hold Annual Meeting

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The Pennsylvania Farmers Union will hold their 18th Annual Convention on October 30, 31 and November 1, 1989. The event will be held at the Holiday Inn at Grantville with the theme this year being, "Family Farming Challenging the '90's."

Slated speakers for the three day meeting include: Pennsylvania Governor, Robert P. Casey; National Farmers Union President, Leland Swenson; Texas Commissioner of Agriculture, Jim Hightower; President of the Pennsylvania AFL-CIO, Julius Uehlein; Pennsylvania Auditor General, Barbara Hafer; Executive Director of Pennsylvania Green Thumb, Orville Carver; and members of the National Farmers Union staff.

Also this year at the PFU annual meeting, election of officers will take place. Approximately 150 voting delegates from across Pennsylvania will elect both their leadership for the next two years, their representatives for the National Farmers Union Convention in March of 1990, and PFU policy for the coming year.

William H. Sturges, executive director of the Pennsylvania Farmers Union said, "The responsibilities of delegates at this convention is of the utmost importance, as they will be the one's to chart the course of action the organization will take this year."

"Our members are the voice of the PFU, this is their convention. It is an opportunity for our leadership to respond to the concerns and direction of our members," said Allen Deiter, PFU president.

"We are very proud to have this line-up of speakers to address our delegates. At a time when agriculture needs outspoken leaders, our organization is in the forefront of this cause," Sturges added.

The Pennsylvania Farmers Union, a general farm organization, is dedicated to preserving the family farm.

Pre-Selecting Progeny Sex Researched

U.S. Department of Agiculture researchers are a step closer in developing a new sperm-sorting technique to pre-determine the sex of livestock progeny. The technique has been 80 percent sucessful in rabbits and has been tested on pigs. Researchers say the procedure also will be applicable to sheep and cattle. Although the method still is too slow for commercial use, it can be used with in vitro fertilization.

SLICK CONCRETE CAN BE ROUGHENED

SCABBLING is an effective way to avoid unnecessary losses of cattle. The SCABBLER makes bands about two inches wide approximately 1/8" to 3/16 in. depth. This gives sufficient area for good footing while allowing you to scrape the smooth surface as before. It is near enough to the surface to give your cows full advantage of the roughness and deep enough to remain effective for years. It greatly aids in heat detection.

And the good news is that it is reasonably priced. You have the choice of doing it yourself or having us do it for you. We offer service right to your door. Call us for more details.

Berks County Farm-City Banquet Set

The sixth annual Berks County Farm-City Banquet will be held on November 9, at The Riveredge restaurant.

Starting at 6:00 p.m. a social hour will be held with french-fried mushrooms, milk punch and cheese products available for tasting. Contests of cheese tasting and flower and egg identification will be conducted. Prizes will be given to the top two agriculture and city winners in each contest.

Dinner will be at 7:00 p.m. and will include tossed salad with mushrooms, fruit cup, veal cordon bleu, oven-brown potato wedges, green beans and carrots, roll and butter, ice cream and milk, coffee or tea.

The program will feature the farmer-business person exchange through slides. This year Jack Holcomb, WEEU radio personality exchanged with Mary Spayd, Spayd's Greenhouse and Flower Shop; Ron Dunkelberger, Vice President of Maier's Sunbeam Bakery exchanged with Bill Trace, pheasant grower; and Michael O'Pake, Pennsylvania State Senator exchanged with George Moyer, dairyman and 1989 Master Farmer.

Also, an individual and a company will receive the Berks County public relations in agriculture awards.

Each person attending will receive a special plant in a basket. The cost is $12.50 per person. A Pomona Grange Farm-City quilt will be raffled off during the banquet. For tickets and reservations, contact Clyde Myers, Berks Co. Cooperative Extension, Berks County Agricultural Center, P.O. Box 520, Leesport, PA 19533; 215/378-1327. Bloomsburg Fair 4-H Livestock Sale Nets $19,000

BY HELEN KELCHNER
Columbia Co. Correspondent

BERWICK (Columbia Co.) — The 4-H beef and lamb sale at Bloomsburg Fair netted $19,000, enriching the college funds and bank accounts of many area young people. While the average price of beef was down, lamb prices were up by 8 cents per pound compared to last year.

Todd Laudenslager topped the lamb sale with his 102-pound grand champion, which brought $3.25 per pound. John Fritz of Sunset Ice Cream in Williamsport was high bidder.

Laudenslager, 18, of Northumberland County, has been in Lick-Kill 4-H for seven years. He is the son of Lynn and Dixie Laudenslager.

Todd and his brother, Troy, buy lambs from their father each year, raise them as 4-H projects, then show and sell them at Bloomsburg Fair. Their father, Lynn, maintains a flock of 90 ewes.

Todd is a senior at Line Mountain School and is hoping to study ag Business at Cornell. Profits from his lamb sales will help finance his education.

The 110-pound reserve grand champion lamb, owned and shown by Luke Zerby of Snyder County, was bought for $1.25 per pound by Ryan Jewelers of Danville.

Jon Hummel's grand champion market steer brought $1.25 per pound. Robert Dent, Dent Plumbing and Heating, Lightstreet was high bidder.

This is Jon's third year in 4-H. It is the second consecutive year this 10-year-old from Sunbury has shown a grand champion market steer.

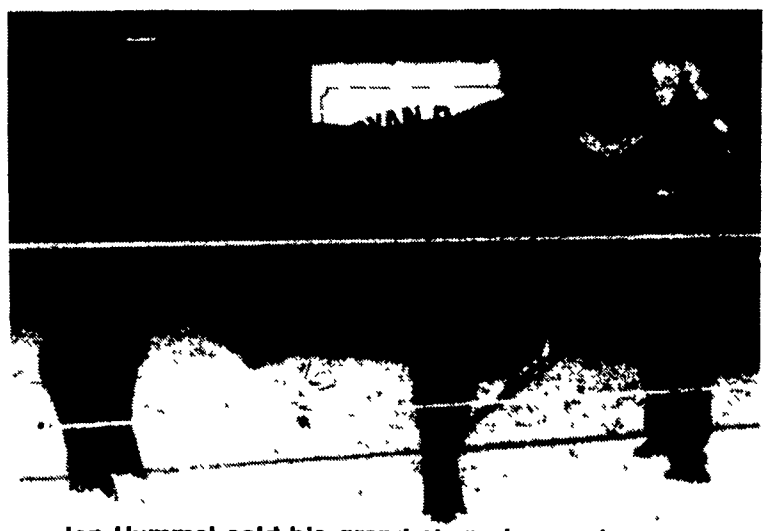
In the judging competition, the judge chose this chocolate-colored Maine-Anjou-Chi-Angus for it's big loin, heavy muscle, and because it was the best finished and most complete of all entries.

Jon is the son of Karen and Scott Hummel. He attends Dalmatia Elementary School, plays basketball and would (probably) like to follow some kind of farm management. At this point in Jon's life, he can't see any career that doesn't include basketball.

Young Hummel is saving for college with his 4-H profits.

Reserve grand champion steer owned by Chris Snyder, Lycoming County, was bought by Keister's Middleburg Auction for 81¢ per pound.

Chris, son of Keith and Debbie Snyder, has been in 4-H seven years. His Angus-Chianina Cross was judged reserved grand champion because of its well-balanced appearance.



Jon Hummel sold his grand champion market steer to Robert Dent of Dent Plumbing & Heating for $1.25 per pound.

Todd Laudenslager of Northumberland County holds his grand champion lamb, which was purchased by John Fritz of Sunset Ice Cream. Fritz entered the top bid of $3.25 per pound for the lamb.

A BIG CUTTER FOR A LOT OF CHORES.

The 3368 series rotary cutter from Bush Hog can do a lot for you. With a 14-foot swath it clips material up to two-inches thick to as low as one-inch high. So it's excellent for general grounds maintenance, pasture and stalk cutting. For row crops, when fine shredding is required, an optional shredder attachment pulverizes heavy stubble to produce mulched crop residue.

The 3368 rotary cutter is available with a self-leveling pull hitch, a 3-point lift hitch, or an economical semi-mount hitch. You get a choice of laminated, pneumatic or airplane wheels. And there's more to choose—such as hydraulic or manual height control. Come in today and see all the 3368 has to offer...and all it can do for you.

Dairy Tips By Dr. John Clark

PURINA MILLS, INC.

Don't Neglect Your Dry Cows

Preparing the milking cow for her next lactation begins during the last 30-90 days of her current lactation. This must be done to assure sufficient time to replace body reserves used up in the previous lactation. The modern dairy cow has an inborn ability to use nutrients stored in bones and other tissues for milk production over and above that supported by feed. These nutrients removed from her body must be replaced, however, if she is to produce an equal or greater amount her next lactation. If they are not replaced, she will not peak as high and will not rebreed as efficiently.

The stress put on cows because of recent drought caused extremes in temperature and poor feed intake makes it doubly important to rebuild body condition. This can be done during the last 30-90 days of the lactation cycle and should continue through the dry cow period to rebuild body stores along with calf growth.

ATTENTION!! HOG, POULTRY, DAIRY AND CATTLE FARMERS

NOW is the time to protect your investment in grain, feed and buildings from RODENTS. WHY NOW??? Because now is the time of high rat activity and storage of new grains. One rat can damage $25.00 worth of feed and facilities. There is only one BEST solution. ASSAULT FROM PURINA.

Why Is Assault The Best?

1. Newest, most effective killing active
2. #1 palatable brand on the market
3. Kills the most rats or mice per packet
4. The lowest cost to kill each rodent

Recently a dairyman in Lancaster with a rat problem bought one bucket and a week later he told me, "I haven't seen any more rats." A large egg layer operator told me, "I've tried them all and ASSAULT works."
